Language, and Ontology M. Joshua Mozersky,2015-01-29 This book brings together in a novel way an account of the structure of time with an account of our language and thought about time Joshua Mozersky argues that it is possible to reconcile the human experience of time which is centred on the present with the objective conception of time according to which all moments are intrinsically alike He defends a temporally centreless ontology along with a tenseless semantics that is compatible with and indeed helps to explain the need for tensed language and thought This theory of time also it is argued helps to elucidate the nature of change and temporal passage neither of which need be denied nor relegated to the realm of subjective experience only The book addresses a variety of topics including whether the past and future are real whether temporal passage is a genuine phenomenon or merely a subjective illusion how the asymmetry of time is to be understood the nature of representation how something can change its properties yet retain its identity and whether objects are three dimensional or four dimensional It is a wide ranging examination of recent issues in metaphysics philosophy of language and the philosophy of science and presents a compelling picture of the relationship of human beings to the spatiotemporal world
