The Future Roles of U.S. Military Power and Their Implications William Thomas Johnsen, 1997 As the daily headlines attest the Department of Defense is in the midst of a Quadrennial Defense Review QDR Charged by Congress the Department of Defense is examining a broad range of issues concerning U S military policy and strategy inter alia future national defense strategy the force structure necessary to implement that strategy the affects of technology on force structure and the anticipated roles and missions of the Reserve Components in executing the defense strategy that will have far reaching consequences for the United States Before these crucial issues are addressed however a more fundamental question needs to be explored what does the United States want its military to do In other words what are the future roles of the U S military Only after this issue has been answered can the Department of Defense turn to the other important issues posed by Congress Dr William T Johnsen tackles this question In brief he concludes that the U S military will continue to perform its traditional roles deterrence reassurance compellence and support to the nation The method and manner of carrying out those roles however will change in some cases substantially The implications of these adapted roles will be considerable More importantly Dr Johnsen also examines the emerging role of preventive defense and its potentially profound consequences for the U S military The debates carried out within and about the QDR will shape the security policy of the United States well into the 21st Century

The Treaty Making Power of the United States Charles Henry Butler, 1902 U.S. COMPILED STATUTES United States, 1923 The United States is a nation. Historical review of the treaty-making power of the United States Charles Henry Butler, 1902 In irons U.S. military might in the new century, 1995 This book is about the future condition of America s military might The message is sobering unsettling and for the moment unheeded Despite the best intentions of government U S fighting strength is being steadily and perceptibly eroded Unless the nation takes powerful remedial action or is very lucky before the end of this century this erosion in military power will lead to profound decline decay or worse Worse means that the debilitating form of in irons will become inevitable As will be shown the reasons for this accelerating and downward defense spiral are now predominantly structural domestic and embedded in the way the United States Government does and will do business in a world that possesses but a single superpower The larger questions of whether a dramatic cut in U S military capabilities and in the ability to project force on a timely and effective operational basis will matter and will harm U S national security are currently less precisely answerable However any message of warning is sure to be muffled and muzzled by measures of disinterest and complacency naturally arising from the public s attention on almost exclusively non defense issues and from the immediate and overwhelming superiority of today s U S military forces that seemingly contradicts any forecasts of despair Defense White Paper, 2004 The Law of the American Constitution Charles Kellogg Burdick, 1922
