Tribe That Hides From Man:

The Tribe that Hides from Man Adrian Cowell, 1995 This is the story of a television camera crew who in 1968 attempted to make contact with the Kreen Akrore the most ferocious and invisible Amazon tribe then to inhabit the rain forest The tribe's hostility to Europeans had proved virtually implacable for years they had been killing intruders on sight During the 70s as the Stone Age tribes of the Amazon fell prey to European diseases the Brazilian government established a national park on the River Xingu and sent out expeditions to contact the remaining Indians in an attempt to acclimatize them to the 20th century The two Villas Boas brothers Claudio and Orlando were selected to make contact with the Kreen Akrore deep in the hostile jungle

Navigating the Future Monica Minnegal, Peter D. Dwyer, 2017-06-08

Navigating the Future draws on long term ethnographic fieldwork with Kubo people and their neighbours in a remote area of Papua New Guinea to explore how worlds are reconfigured as people become increasingly conscious of and seek to draw into their own lives wealth and power that had previously lain beyond their horizons In the context of a major resource extraction project the Papua New Guinea Liquefied Natural Gas PNG LNG Project taking shape in the mountains to the north the people in this area are actively reimagining their social world This book describes changes in practice that result tracing shifts in the ways people relate to the land to each other and to outsiders and the histories of engagement that frame those changes Inequalities are emerging between individuals in access to paid work between groups in potential for claiming future royalties and between generations in access to information As people at the village of Suabi strive to make themselves visible to the state and to petroleum companies as legal entities entitled to receive benefits from the PNG LNG Project they are drawing new boundaries around sets of people and around land and declaring hierarchical relationships between groups that did not exist before They are struggling to make sense of a bureaucracy that is foreign to them in a place where the state currently has minimal presence A primary concern of Navigating the Future is with the processes through which these changes have emerged as people seek to imagine and work to bring about a radically different future for themselves while simultaneously reimagining their own past in ways that validate those endeavours
