THE TUNNELLERS

FROM THE MINES TO MESSINES

The Tunnellers

Ellis Delmonte

The Tunnellers:

Directing the Tunnellers' War Phillip Robinson, Nigel Cave, 2021-01-18 A first hand account of the underground work of the First World War from the firing of mines to constructing subways to bureaucratic mishaps With a background in mining and tunneling Major H R Dixon was transferred to GHQ in Montreuil to handle mining plans and records In due course he was appointed to a small group of Royal Engineers officers who operated as the eyes and ears of the Inspector of Mines His activity in this role is particularly important for the period after the June 1917 Messines Offensive when the use of mining for blows against the enemy substantially diminished indeed all but disappeared and the tunneling companies were reallocated to a new range of tasks Dixon was at the centre of staff activity that set about countering the effects of the German Kaiserslacht offensives in March April and May 1918 and the preparations for a possible German breakthrough to the channel ports Subsequently with the allied advances of the Last Hundred Days he became considerably occupied by the hazards of dealing with delayed action mines and booby traps His manuscript produced in 1933 remained no more than a draft until it was rescued some time ago by one of the editors from the Royal Engineers archives at Chatham It recounts by means of numerous humorous anecdotes the personalities and work of the staff at GHQ ranging from humble clerks and the misdemeanors of his batman to senior officers He brings to life the exceptional endeavours of the often maligned senior staff and the individual characteristics of many senior staff officers who are otherwise but shadows in accounts of the Great War

The Tunnellers Raymond Hitchcock, 2015-10-15 It is 1917 and 90 feet beneath the German trenches on the Messines Ridge in Flanders two young British Sappers are guarding 60 000 pounds of explosives designed to blow the enemy positions sky high But the enemy is already tunnelling towards them Raymond Hitchcock s immaculately researched World War I saga first published in 1986 is a graphic description of trench warfare and the perilous work of the Tunnellers who fought their war beneath the trenches The brutality of tunnel life the tensions between officers and the men the comradeship and the heroism of the battlefield are delicately contrasted with flashbacks to pre war Somerset village life making this a tense exciting and surprisingly tender thriller

The History of the 51st (Highland) Division, 1914-1918 Frederick William Bewsher, 1921 If it were possible for the General who for three years commanded all the British Divisions in France and was served with equal gallantry devotion and success by each to admit a predilection for any of them my affection would naturally turn to the Division that drew so many of its recruits from the same part of Scotland where my boyhood was spent and my own people lived Those who read the pages of this book will find therein a tale of patient endeavour and glorious achievement of which I claim a good right to be as proud as any of my fellow countrymen The 51st Division does not need to boast of its prowess or its record It can point to the story of its deeds plainly and simply told and leave the world to judge

Transactions of the Institution of Mining & Metallurgy , 1919 Beneath Flanders Fields Peter Barton, Peter Doyle, John Vandewalle, 2005-07-07 The result of over twenty five years of research Beneath Flanders Fields reveals how this intense underground battle was fought and won The authors give the first full account of mine warfare in World War I through the words of the tunnellers themselves as well as plans drawings and previously unpublished archive photographs many in colour Beneath Flanders Fields also shows how military mining evolved The tunnellers constructed hundreds of deep dugouts that housed tens of thousands of troops Often electrically lit and ventilated these tunnels incorporated headquarters cookhouses soup kitchens hospitals drying rooms and workshops A few dugouts survive today a final physical legacy of the Great War and are presented for the first time in photographs in Beneath Flanders Fields JOHNNY ENZED Glyn Harper,2015-07-27 The New Zealand soldiers who left these shores to fight in the First World War represented one of the greatest collective endeavours in the nation s history Over 100 000 men and women would embark for overseas service and almost 60 000 of them became casualties For a small nation like New Zealand this was a tragedy on an unimagined scale Using their personal testimony this book reveals what these men experienced the truth of their lives in battle at rest at their best and their worst Through a comprehensive and sympathetic scrutiny of New Zealand soldiers correspondence diaries and memoirs a compelling picture of the New Zealand soldier s war from general to private is revealed This is not a campaign history of dry facts and detail Rather it examines minutely the everyday experience of trench life in all its shapes and forms Diverse topics such as barbed wire the use of the bayonet gas attacks rats horses food communal singing infectious diseases and much more feature in this riveting account of the New Zealand soldier in the First World War It is the story of ordinary men thrust into the most extraordinary circumstances imaginable Written in an accessible style aimed at the interested general reader the book is the product of a substantial amount of research The text is complemented by a range of maps illustrations graphs and diagrams The Fortieth Frank C. Green,1922 The National and English Review ,1926 Transactions of the Institution of Mining and Metallurgy Institution of Mining and Metallurgy (Great Britain),1919 The Canadian Mining and Metallurgical Bulletin ,1928 The Mining Engineer Institution of Mining Engineers (Great Britain),1919 Jubilee Joe Ellis Delmonte,2017-09-15 The National Review ,1926 The Nineteenth Century and After ,1922 The Mining Engineer ,1919 The Mining Magazine ,1921 The Life of a Tunnelling Company Herbert W. Graham,1927 The New Zealand Tunnelling Company, 1915-1919 J. C. Neill,1922 The Saturday Review of Politics, Literature, Science and Art ,1919 War Diary of the Fifth Seaforth Highlanders, 51st (Highland) Division D. Sutherland,1920
