How small print is a threat to health

By John H. Johnson

MORE THAN 100 million Americans are now covered by health insurance. The industry is a $100-billion-a-year business, and it is growing rapidly. But the industry is also facing a major crisis. The crisis is not the result of a single event, but the result of a series of events that have taken place over the past few years. The crisis is the result of a combination of factors, including the rising cost of health care, the increasing number of people who are uninsured, and the increasing number of people who are underinsured. The crisis is the result of a combination of factors that have taken place over the past few years.
