New Times in Modern Japan Stefan Tanaka, 2009-02-09 New Times in Modern Japan concerns the transformation of time the reckoning of time during Japan s Meiji period specifically from around 1870 to 1900 Time literally changed as the archipelago synchronized with the Western imperialists reckoning of time The solar calendar and clock became standard timekeeping devices and society adapted to the abstractions inherent in modern notions of time This set off a cascade of changes that completely reconfigured how humans interacted with each other and with their environment a process whose analysis carries implications for other non Western societies as well By examining topics ranging from geology ghosts childhood art history and architecture to nature as a whole Stefan Tanaka explores how changing conceptions of time destabilized inherited knowledge and practices and ultimately facilitated the reconfiguration of the archipelago s heterogeneous communities into the liberal capitalist nation state Japan However this revolutionary transformation where in the words of Lewis Mumford the clock not the steam engine is the key mechanism of the industrial age has received little more than a footnote in the history of Japan This book s innovative focus on time not only shifts attention away from debates about the failure or success of modernization toward how individuals interact with the overlay of abstract concepts upon their lives it also illuminates the roles of history as discourse and as practice in this reconfiguration of society In doing so it will influence discussions about modernity well beyond the borders of Japan
