

Water Conservation: A Guide to Promoting Public Awareness

A. Introduction

Security of freshwater is emerging as a global issue owing to steadily increasing use of limited resources by a growing population, coupled with diminishing availability due to inadequate management, deforestation and increasing pollution. To achieve a secure and sustainable water future, the efficiency of current water supply and usage needs to be improved.

In the Asian and Pacific region, with one or two notable exceptions, it is common to find up to 50 per cent of treated and piped water either lost during distribution or wasted during use. Developing a culture of water conservation that utilizes existing supplies more efficiently would enable expensive new source development projects to be cancelled or at least postponed for several years.

Water conservation refers to action taken to use water efficiently and has two parts: water resources conservation - efficient management, storage, allocation and transfer of raw water; and water supply conservation - distribution with minimal losses and consumption without wastage.

Water conservation awareness (WCA) is an understanding of the need to use water efficiently at all stages from capture to consumption, in order to promote change in attitudes and behaviour with regard to water management and use. Except in a few countries that are successfully promoting WCA, overall awareness in the Asian and Pacific region is alarmingly low.

This Guide explains the importance of WCA in integrated water resources management before focusing on a framework for promoting WCA to users of piped water supplies. It does not address in detail water conservation in agriculture, which is the largest water-user category, although most of the proposals can be adapted and applied to that sector. The Guide advocates a multi-step framework for preparing an overall strategy and designing WCA promotional activities, implementing the activities and monitoring and evaluating their effectiveness. Countries will need to adapt the proposals to suit their social, economic and cultural circumstances.

The Guide is aimed at three broad groups of readers: politicians and policy makers; water planners and managers; and social marketers and educators. The objective is to help these groups to understand the need for water conservation in the potable water supply sector and how it may be approached, so that they can take part in WCA promotion to society as a whole.

B. WCA strategy preparation

Governments should first develop a broad national strategy for water conservation. This might acknowledge, for example, that sustaining water resources requires a nationwide effort in conservation to achieve a balance between supply and demand. It might also commit to integrated water resource management (IWRM) and to conservation promotion - improving supply-side management to reduce losses and introducing demand-side management to limit wastage.

Eleven steps in a top-down approach are recommended to prepare a detailed strategy for promoting WCA, as follows.
