

World Population Prospects: Main Results

1. World population growth by variants

The world population is expected to keep on rising during the 21st century, although its growth is projected to experience a marked deceleration during the second half of the century.

- According to the medium variant of the 2010 Revision of World Population Prospects, the world population is expected to increase from 6.9 billion in mid-2011 to 9.3 billion in 2050 and to reach 10.1 billion by 2100. Realization of this projection is contingent on the continued decline of fertility in countries that still have fertility above replacement level (that is, countries where women have, on average, more than one daughter) and a slight increase of fertility in the countries that have below-replacement fertility. In addition, mortality would have to decline in all countries.

- If fertility were to remain constant in each country at the level it had in 2005-2010, the world population could reach nearly 27 billion by 2100 (see constant fertility variant in figure 1). A future fertility that remains just half a child above that projected in the medium variant would result in a population of 15.8 billion in 2100 (high variant), but if fertility remains just half a child below that of the medium variant, the world population in 2100 could be 6.2 billion, the same size it had at the start of the 21st century.

- Today, 42 per cent of the world population lives in low-fertility countries, that is, countries where women are not having enough children to ensure that, on average, each woman is replaced by a daughter who survives to the age of procreation (i.e., their fertility is below replacement level). Another 40 per cent lives in intermediate-fertility countries where each woman is having, on average, between 1 and 1.5 daughters, and the remaining 18 per cent lives in high-fertility countries where the average woman has more than 1.5 daughter.

- Even if the fertility of each country would reach replacement level in 2010-2015, the world population would continue to increase over the rest of the century, reaching 9.1 billion in 2050 and 9.9 billion in 2100 (see the "instant replacement variant" in the figure above).

2. Population growth by major regions

Asia will remain the most populous major area in the world during the 21st century but Africa will gain ground as its population more than triples, passing from 1 billion in 2011 to 3.6 billion in 2100.

- In 2011, 60 per cent of the world population lived in Asia and 15 per cent in Africa. Until the early 1990s, Europe had been the second most populous region of the world, but in 1996 the population of Africa surpassed that of Europe for the first time. Africa's population is growing very rapidly, at 2.3 per cent per year during 2010-2015, a rate more than double that of Asia's population (1.0 per cent per year). The population of Africa first surpassed a billion in 2009 and is

Sustainable Development in Africa Walter Leal Filho, Rudi Pretorius, Luiza Olim de Sousa, 2021-07-09 This book serves the purpose of documenting and promoting African experiences on sustainable development which encompasses both formal and non formal education Sustainable development is very important to Africa but there is a paucity of publication which documents and promotes experiences from African countries Due to their complexity the interrelations between social economic and political factors related to sustainable development especially at universities need to be better understood There is also a real need to showcase successful examples of how African institutions are handling their sustainability challenges It is against this background that this book has been produced It is a truly interdisciplinary publication useful to scholars social movements practitioners and members of governmental agencies and private companies undertaking research and or executing projects focusing on sustainability from across Africa As African nations strive to pursue the UN Sustainable Development Goals it is imperative to cater for the information needs seen across the continent and foster the dissemination of experiences and case studies which may support both on going and future efforts The scope of the book is deliberately kept wide and we are looking for contributions across the spectrum of sustainable development from business and economics to arts and fashion administration environment languages and media studies

Rural Development Issues Arnold V. Burlingham, 2008 Rural development is a crucial issue throughout the world Key issues include farming and forestry land use and the management of natural resources In addition economic diversification in rural communities is at the centre of many programs across the globe

Poverty Alleviation, 2008 Poverty is a social fact of life for billions of people around the world The developed countries abhor poverty or seem to for several reasons Perhaps it is a blotch on their consciences Perhaps there is a genuine desire to help those who are not prospering while others around them are Perhaps they wish to pay lip service to the good cause of eliminating either poverty or the poor whichever comes first This new book brings together new economic research on programs and policies related to poverty and its elimination or alleviation around the globe

Active Ageing and Physical Activity Gonçalo Nuno Figueiredo Dias, Micael Santos Couceiro, 2017-02-28 This book presents an analysis of active ageing and physical activity from a multidisciplinary perspective With descriptions of exercises adequately illustrated with pictures this book shows that regular physical activity reduces the prevalence of chronic diseases associated with ageing as well as the risk of morbidity and mortality of the elderly It confirms that exercise programs minimize the psychomotor decline prevent the loss of functionality inability and dementia and foster significant gains in health and well being leading to increased quality of life of the elderly

International Handbook of Population Aging Peter Uhlenberg, 2009-04-29 The International Handbook of Population Aging examines research on a wide array of the profound implications of population aging It demonstrates how the world is changing through population aging and how demography is changing in response to it

Practical Geriatric Oncology Arti Hurria, Harvey Jay Cohen, 2010-09-13 The risk of cancer increases with age and the number of older adults seeking treatment is increasing dramatically in line with the aging population The care of older patients differs from that of younger adults because of differences in the biology of the tumor age related differences in host physiology comorbidity burden and psychosocial issues which might impact the efficacy and side effects of cancer therapy Practical Geriatric Oncology is a comprehensive evidence based text that synthesizes the growing literature in this field and provides practical guidelines to the care of older adults with cancer Coverage includes patient assessment management of solid tumors and hematologic malignancies the impact of age on the pharmacology of cancer therapy surgical oncology and radiation oncology in the older adult symptom management and supportive care In addition to serving as core reading for oncologists and hematologists the book will also be a useful work for other healthcare professionals who provide oncology care including surgeons radiation oncologists palliative care doctors primary care providers geriatricians and nurses

Accession and Migration Yordanka Valkanova,2016-12-05 The expansion of the European Union in May 2004 through the entry of ten countries from Central and Eastern Europe has generated considerable media interest interest which was revived by further expansion in January 2007 when Bulgaria and Romania became the latest nations from the east to join Rather than focus exclusively on changes within the EU labour market and related policy debates this book offers a careful grounded analysis of the social and cultural processes bound up with migration flows between Britain and Bulgaria placing these flows in the wider European perspective As such Accession and Migration will be of interest not only to migration scholars but also to policy makers at local national and international levels
