Briton Hadden, Henry R. Luce

Time Of Man:

Space, Time, and Man Carl Gustav Carus, Alexander Jacob, 2025-12-26 Naturphilosophie or the natural philosophy that was developed in nineteenth century Germany was an attempt on the part of philosophers like Friedrich Schelling 1775 1854 and Lorenz Oken 1779 1851 to advance a philosophical understanding of Nature as opposed to the mere scientific study of it One of the major German natural philosophers was Carl Gustav Carus 1789 1869 whose published works included several books on zoology medicine psychology and physiology apart from his major natural philosophical work Natur und Idee oder das Werdende und sein Gesetz 1861 According to Carus all philosophical study must begin with God and one who is not conscious of the Idea of God in himself cannot pretend to philosophise This consciousness is contained in the individual mind as the conscious mind as its willing feeling and understanding Of the organic bodies manifest on earth man is thus the highest However man can develop spiritually to a high degree only within a state which men design when they have progressed beyond the individual and the family Since the highest endeavour of man must be his return to God political life should be perfected in the spiritual By providing a knowledge of the manifestation of the divinity within the macrocosm and the microcosm Carus study of Becoming serves as a preparation for the highest human pursuits of spiritual philosophy and religion
