Working For The Future:

Debating a Post-Work Future Denise Celentano, Michael Cholbi, Jean-Philippe Deranty, Kory P. Schaff, 2024-06-19 The book provides a comprehensive critical overview of philosophical social scientific and humanistic arguments about the design and desirability of post work society Its purpose is to clarify the concepts and theories that inform this debate by exploring the diversity of arguments from a wide range of perspectives about the meaning of a post work future The book s 12 chapters were written exclusively for the volume by an international team of researchers in philosophy political science gender studies law sociology history and engineering They are organized into four larger sections I Defining the Post Work Debate II From Past to Future III The Value and Conditions of Work vs Post Work IV The Politics and Justice of Post Work After a general introduction and then an initial round table discussion among four leading theorists the book explores topics like work as an evolving social invention the possible effects of a shorter work week and UBI automation climate change and the roles of Marxism capitalism and democracy in a post work future

The Future of Work, Employment and Social Protection Peter Auer, Bernard Gazier, 2002 This volume comprises the papers and debates of the second France ILO Symposium on the future of work employment and social protection Reflecting the aim of the Symposium itself the book provides in depth reflections on work employment and social protection Designed to be more than an account of the discussions this book is a useful tool for all those interested in labour market transition and the increasing importance of female labour for the future of the labour markets particularly in the developed world The book discusses the need for more family friendly policies and a more radical policy of equality between the sexes The legal dimensions of labour market change are also debated and the book explores the positive and negative sides of globalization and its links with technological change
