Regional Archaeology in the Inca Heartland R. Alan Covey,2014-01-01 The Cuzco region of highland Peru was the heartland of the Inca empire the largest native state to develop in the Americas Archaeologists have studied Inca monumental architecture for more than a century but it is only in recent decades that regional survey work has systematically sought to reconstruct patterns of settlement subsistence and social organization in the region This monograph presents the results of regional surveys conducted from 2000 to 2008 to the north and west of the city of Cuzco a region of approximately 1200 square kilometers that was investigated using the same field methodology as other systematic surveys in the Cuzco region The study region referred to as Hanan Cuzco in this volume encompasses considerable environmental variations ranging from warm valley bottom lands to snow capped mountains The chapters in this volume present settlement pattern data from all periods of pre Columbian occupation from the arrival of the first hunter gatherers to the transformation of valley bottom fields by the last Inca emperors A chapter on the colonial period discusses how Spanish colonial practices transformed an imperial landscape into a peripheral one Together the chapters in this volume contribute to the archaeological understanding of several central issues in Andean prehistory

Anthropology, Memoirs Field Museum of Natural History,1926 The Quarterly Review ,1892 Pikillacta Gordon F. McEwan,2009-05 The origin of the first Andean imperial state has been the subject of lively debate for decades Archaeological sites dating to the Peruvian Middle Horizon time period A D 540 to 900 appear to give evidence for the emergence of an expansive empire that set the stage for the development of the later Inca state This archaeological investigation of Pikillacta the largest provincial site of Peru s pre Inca Wari empire provides essential background for interpreting the empire s political and cultural organization With engineering skills rivaling those of the builders of Cuzco itself the Wari at Pikillacta erected more than seven hundred buildings covering nearly two square kilometers with a fresh water supply and an elaborate underground sewage system but enigmatically only seven short streets and a near total lack of windows In this long awaited volume Gordon McEwan and his colleagues report on the labor costs of construction nearly 6 million man days the typology of Pikillacta s enigmatic architecture and the site s spectacular hydraulic system as well as its ceramics and chronology human remains and metal artifacts In the final section building on his years of research and excavation McEwan develops a hypothetical model of Wari provincial administration in the Cuzco region arguing that the Wari were innovators of techniques of statecraft that explain the function of and the labor investment in the Pikillacta complex His book not only substantively contributes to our understanding of when and exactly how and why Pikillacta was built and what it was used for it also illuminates the political and cultural antecedents of the Inca state Proceedings of the Twenty-third International Congress of Americanists, 1930
