The Canadian Labour Movement: A Short History

Craig Heron,2012-04-03 In The Canadian Labour Movement historian Craig Heron tells the story of Canada s workers from the mid nineteenth century through to today painting a vivid picture of key developments such as the birth of craft unionism the breakthroughs of the fifties and sixties and the setbacks of the early twenty first century This new edition has been completely updated including a substantial new chapter that covers the period from 1995 to 2011 In this chapter Heron describes the rise of globalization and the restructuring of the private sector that began in the nineties and continues today. The results have been catastrophic for Canadian working people as plants closed and union activities were curtailed. As the political right succeeded in dominating public debate during this period, workers suffered ever greater losses, fewer and more precarious jobs, rising unemployment, stagnating wages, and increases in poverty. Only with the crash of 2008 and the Occupy Wall Street movement has space for the political left and labour begun to open up once again. The Canadian Labour Movement is the definitive book for anyone who is interested in understanding the origins, achievements, and challenges of labour and social justice movements in Canada.

Working in Steel Craig Heron, 1988-01-01. Here is the story of how mass production came to Canada and what it meant for Canadian workers. Craig Heron's Working in Steel takes the reader inside the huge new steel plants that were built in Sydney, New Glasgow, Trenton, Hamilton, and Sault Ste Marie at the turn of the century. Amid massive fire-breathing machines, we meet the steelworkers, many of them migrants from southern and eastern European villages or Newfoundland outports, who braved the smoke, noise, and heat in gruelling twelve-hour days, seven days a week. And we watch the inevitable conflicts that developed when these workers began to make demands on their bosses. Professor Heron presents a stimulating new analysis of the Canadian working class in the early twentieth century emphasizing the importance of changes in the work world for the larger patterns of working class life He examines the impact of new technology in Canada s Second Industrial Revolution but challenges the popular notion that mass production workers lost all skill power and pride in the work process He shifts the explanation of managerial control in these plants from machines to the blunt authoritarianism and shrewd paternalism of corporate management His discussion of Canada s first steelworkers sheds new light on the uneven unpredictable and conflict ridden process of technological change in industrial capitalist society The Canadian Historical Review ,1928 Constructing and Imagining Labour Migration Elspeth Guild,Sandra Mantu,2011 The result of a workshop that took place in February 2009 in New York Opens the debate on the global politics of labour migration by proposing a re assessment of the interaction between states regarding labour migration Presenting case specific scholarship from leading experts from five different continents each contribution engages with the changing landscape of migration control and teases out emerging control patterns dynamics and correlations that can be made between them and existing control paradigms The multidisciplinary and global focus sheds much needed light on the mechanisms deployed by states in their attempts to control labour migration and on the manner in which these mechanisms impact upon migrants themselves leaving some caught up in the politics of labour market control
