The Leather Workers Journal ,1918 Women Workers in the Second World War Penny Summerfield,2013-03-05 The Second World War is often seen as a period of emancipation because of the influx of women into paid work and because the state took steps to relieve women of domestic work This study challenges such a picture The state approached the removal of women from the domestic sphere with extreme caution in spite of the desperate need for women s labour in war work Women s own preferences were frequently neglected or distorted in the search for a compromise between production and patriarchy However the enduring practices of paying women less and treating them as an inferior category of workers led to growth in the numbers and proportions of women employed after the war in many areas of work Penny Summerfield concludes that the war accelerated the segregation of women in inferior sectors of work and inflated the expectation that working women would bear the double burden without a redistribution of responsibility for the domestic sphere between men women and the state First published in 1984 this is an important book for students of history sociology and women s studies at all levels Migrant War Workers in Newark Housing Authority of the City of Newark (New Jersey),1944
