The Ticking Tenure Clock Blaire Atherton French, 1998 Lydia Martin begins her tenure year one book shy and when a sensational project presents itself she finds herself romantically entangled and ethically challenged The Ticking Tenure Clock Blaire French, 1998-01-01 Lydia Martin begins her tenure year one book shy and when a sensational project presents itself she finds herself romantically entangled and ethically challenged Is the Clock Still Ticking? An Evaluation of the Consequences of Stopping the Tenure Clock Colleen Flaherty Manchester, 2013 Using a longitudinal administrative dataset from a large research university we empirically evaluate the consequences of using stop the clock STC policies for the career success of tenure track faculty STC policies were introduced approximately 40 years ago yet surprisingly little is known about how they affect career outcomes The prevalence of the ideal worker norm in academia raises the possibility of negative consequences as evaluators may treat policy use as a signal that the faculty member lacks sufficient commitment to his or her academic role Consistent with this possibility faculty members who stop their clock for family reasons incur a salary penalty relative to faculty members who do not stop their clock that cannot be explained by differences in productivity Alternatively faculty members who use the policy are not at a promotion disadvantage as compared to non users and actually have higher promotion rates Staging Women's Lives in Academia Michelle A. Massé, Nan Bauer-Maglin, 2017-01-12 Argues that institutional change must accommodate women's professional and personal life stages Staging Women's Lives in Academia demonstrates how ostensibly personal decisions are shaped by institutions and advocates for ways that workplaces not women must be changed Addressing life stages ranging from graduate school through retirement these essays represent a gamut of institutions and women who draw upon both personal experience and scholarly expertise The contributors contemplate the slipperiness of the very categories we construct to explain the stages of life and ask key questions such as what does it mean to be a graduate student at fifty Or a full professor at thirty five The book explores the ways women in all stages of academia feel that they are always too young or too old too attentive to work or too overly focused on family By including the voices of those who leave as well as those who stay this collection signals the need to rebuild the house of academia so that women can have not only classrooms of their own but also lives of their own Faculty Towers Elaine Showalter, 2005 In the days before there were handbooks self help guides or advice columns for graduate students and junior faculty there were academic novels teaching us how a proper professor should speak behave dress think write love and more than occasionally solve murders If many of these books are wildly funny others paint pictures of failure and pain of lives wasted or destroyed Like the suburbs Elaine Showalter notes the campus can be the site of pastoral and refuge But even ivory towers can be structurally unsound or at least built with glass ceilings Though we love to read about them all is not well in the faculty towers and the situation has been worsening In Faculty Towers Showalter takes a personal look at the ways novels about the academy have charted changes in the university and society since 1950 With her readings of C P Snow's idealized world of Cambridge dons or of the globe trotting antics of David Lodge's Morris Zapp of the sleuthing Kate Fansler in Amanda Cross's best selling mystery series or of the recent spate of bitter novels in which narratives of sexual harassment seem to serve as fables of power anger and desire Showalter holds a mirror up to the world she has inhabited over the course of a distinguished and often controversial career

Meat Culture Annie Potts, 2016-11-21 The analysis of meat and its place in Western culture has been central to Human Animal Studies as a field It is even more urgent now as global meat and dairy production are projected to rise dramatically by 2050 While the term carnism denotes the invisible belief system or ideology that naturalizes and normalizes meat consumption in this volume we focus on meat culture which refers to all the tangible and practical forms through which carnist ideology is expressed and lived Featuring new work from leading Australasian European and North American scholars Meat Culture edited by Annie Potts interrogates the representations and discourses practices and behaviours diets and tastes that generate shared beliefs about perspectives on and experiences of meat in the 21st century

A College of Her Own Robert McCaughey, 2020-09-01 In 1889 Annie Nathan Meyer still in her early twenties led the effort to start Barnard College after Columbia College refused to admit women Named after a former Columbia president Frederick Barnard who had advocated for Columbia to become coeducational Barnard despite many ups and downs became one of the leading women's colleges in the United States A College of Her Own offers a comprehensive and lively narrative of Barnard from its beginnings to the present day Through the stories of presidents and leading figures as well as students and faculty Robert McCaughey recounts Barnard's history and how its development was shaped by its complicated relationship to Columbia University and its New York City location McCaughey considers how the student composition of Barnard and its urban setting distinguished it from other Seven Sisters colleges tracing debates around class ethnicity and admissions policies Turning to the postwar era A College of Her Own discusses how Barnard benefited from the boom in higher education after years of a precarious economic situation Beyond the decisions made at the top McCaughey examines the experience of Barnard students including the tumult and aftereffects of 1968 and the impact of the feminist movement The concluding section looks at present day Barnard the shifts in its student body and its efforts to be a global institution Informed by McCaughey's five decades as a Barnard faculty member and administrator A College of Her Own is a compelling history of a remarkable institution

College Presidents Reflect Stephen J. Nelson, 2013-12-16 College presidents lead taxing and complex though enormously fulfilling and rewarding lives The story that unfolds in College Presidents Reflect Life in and out of the Ivory Tower is fashioned from the perspectives of over two dozen retired former college presidents The over their shoulders view we get from these men and women who have sat on the presidential perch provides an unprecedented view of the office of the pathways to presidencies and of the ways in which tenures conclude when presidents decide at times pushed to exit Does anything after leaving office compare with the status and regard regularly accorded presidents How do their bully pulpits change from the power of the presidency to life What are the high successes and unforeseen regrets born out of time in the office From their journeys we learn lessons about leadership We hear about how one gets into the presidency planned or not There is only one true source of insight and reflection about these issues and that is those who have been there these former college presidents
