QUESTION

1. A client with schizophrenia says, "I'm sleep for the day ... but don't know psychology ... or do we have a lot of sleep?" Which statement in the client's speech does the nurse document?

05 / 05 00 0000 0

- A.  Incoherence
- B.  Word salad
- C.  Disorganization

Rationale: Disorganization is the meaningless rhyming of words in which the rhyming is more important than the content of the words. An incoherent (a meaning) word that has meaning only to the client, which reflects the client's a status of meaningless process, either to the client or to the listener. Psychological process is a term used to describe and describe into speech in which connections and threads are interrupted or missing.

Test Taking Strategy: Knowledge of the speech patterns exhibited by the client with schizophrenia is needed to answer this question. Focus on the data in the question and note the meaningless rhyming of words. Review these speech patterns with schizophrenia if you had difficulty with this question.

- Cognitive Ability: Applying
- Client Needs: Psychosocial Integrity
- Nursing Process: Communication and Documentation
- Content Area: Mental Health

- B.  Anxiousness

Answered 1.0 points out of 1.0 possible points.

2. A parent with schizophrenia and his parents are meeting with the nurse. One of the young man's parents says to the nurse, "His wife claimed when we learned that our son had schizophrenia, she was no different than her older brother when they were growing up. How did he end up here, and how can I understand why he stopped his medication?" Which response by the nurse is appropriate?

05 / 05 00 0000 0

- A.  Telling the parents, "Medication non-compliance is the most frequent reason that people with this diagnosis relapse."
- B.  Telling the parents, "Well, it's his decision to take his medicine, but it's your job to supervise him with you if he stops the medication."
- C.  Asking the client, "How can we help you to take your medicine or to tell us when you're having problems so that your medication can be adjusted?"

Rationale: The therapeutic response is the one in which the nurse models accepting ability to the client. This facilitates further assessment of the situation and helps with the causes of and motivations for the client's behavior for both the nurse and the family. In the correct option, the nurse also seeks clarification of the degree of compliance and motivation for the client and his family toward each other. The nurse provides information to the family when stating that non-compliance is the most frequent reason for relapse in people with this diagnosis. However, the statement is nontherapeutic as the nurse because it does not identify the expression of feelings. The real concern is a struggle with of compliance when it drugs. "Well, it's his decision to take his medicine, but it's your job to supervise him with you if he stops the medication." The content of this statement may be true, but it is nontherapeutic in that it sends a threatening message and may prevent the family from trusting the nurse. By stating "Your concerns are appropriate, but I wonder whether your concerns about taking medicine are the real concerns about his medication," the nurse gives approval and encourages the client's medication without sufficient assessment.

Test Taking Strategy: Use your knowledge of therapeutic communication techniques and remember to focus on the client's feelings. Also note that the correct option is the only option in which the nurse directly addresses the client. Review therapeutic communication techniques if you had difficulty with this question.

- Cognitive Ability: Applying
- Client Needs: Psychosocial Integrity
- Nursing Process: Communication and Documentation
- Content Area: Mental Health

- B.  Telling the parents, "Your concerns are appropriate, but I wonder whether your son was having trouble taking someone that he had concerns about his medication."

Answered 1.0 points out of 1.0 possible points.

3. An adult ill client with schizophrenia says to the nurse, "The nurse saying that he likes you, and I love being here you're married, but he don't know, and I love he's going to get back with you." Choose the nurse's best determined that the client is hallucinating, which response for the client would be most appropriate statement?

05 / 05 00 0000 0

- A.  "If you're sure to know this right now so that I can talk with you."

Rationale: The appropriate statement by the nurse is the one that does not acknowledge the client's hallucinations. If responding "I think that you can help me understand the benefits of your concerns" or "That seems sad to read the girl and you or it's sad the girl on that," the nurse acknowledges the hallucinations. The nurse attempts to respect the client's thinking with a statement such as "I think that your attempt to share your own feelings toward me, but you're shy?"

Test Taking Strategy: Use your knowledge of therapeutic communication techniques and remember that the nurse should not acknowledge the client's hallucinations. Also note that the correct option is the only one that acknowledges the client's hallucinations directly. Review therapeutic communication techniques with a client who is hallucinating if you had difficulty with this question.
