Tolerance Autoimmunity And Aging:

Tolerance, Autoimmunity, and Aging Mola Michael Sigel, Robert A. Good, 1972 Immunology and Aging Takashi Makinodan, 2012-12-06 In the classic sense immunity is the ability of an organism to resist disease On the one hand we must distinguish between age and disease on the other hand the interaction between them is of considerable theoretical and practical interest To the gerontologic research community therefore immunity also becomes the ability of an organism to resist age Were the immune and other protective systems of the body able to maintain themselves over the course of time and if there were no degradation related to age the everyday loss of energy and vitality that occurs in the lives of older people as a consequence of viruses arthritis and other debilitating circumstances would be greatly lessened The objective of gerontologists is not just to extend the life span but rather to improve the vigor health and quality of life To date we have not developed a single index to measure immunity that is of use clinically in the evaluation of older people and of their immunologic competence It may not be surprising that just such a clinical index may be available in the not too distant future We can also look forward to the assembling of a greater body of information explaining how and why the immune system fails with age while paradoxically the incidence of autoimmune diseases increases with age It is this latter phenomenon that may play a part in a wide range of chronic diseases from rheumatoid arthritis to senile dementia

Tolerance, Autoimmunity, and Aging, 1972 The Immunopathology of Lymphoreticular Neoplasms J. Twomey, 2012-12-06 Until recently understanding of the lymphomas was limited and largely descriptive Attention has been focused for the most part upon morphological issues and clinical matters Although useful this approach has many shortcomings The true cytoidentity of primary neoplastic cells was not established by these methods nor could their clonal nature be recognized The more overt changes in immunological function such as monoclonal gammopathies and immunodeficiencies were appreciated as important components of these diseases However subtle immunological perturbations were not recognized Furthermore associations were not established between the lymphoreticular neoplasms on the one hand and both primary and secondary immunological abnormalities on the other There has been considerable recent progress in the fields of immunobiology cytology and immunochemistry These new approaches have proved readily applicable to studies on the lymphomas The term lymphoma has been applied to a heterogeneous group of neoplasms that involve lymphoid tissues This term is not altogether satisfactory since it implies that cells of primarily the lymphoid series are involved in the neoplastic process Some neoplasms heretofore classified as lymphomas now appear from the results of penetrating analysis using newer methodology to be malignancies of the macrophage series rather than of the lymphocytic series These neoplasms include Hodgkin's disease and a minority of neoplasms previously referred to as histiocytic lymphomas The majority of these histiocytic lymphomas are now known to be lymphoid malignancies involving the B cell series Frontiers in Aging Research, 1979 Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), First multi year
