McGriff, 2020-08-03 A new pottery tradition has been developing along the border of northern Indiana and southern Michigan Despite the fact that this region is not yet an established destination for pottery collectors Michiana potters are committed to pursuing their craft thanks to the presence of a community of like minded artists The Michiana Potters an ethnographic exploration of the lives and art of these potters examines the communal traditions and aesthetics that have developed in this region Author Meredith A E McGriff identifies several shared methods and styles such as a preference for wood fired wares glossy glaze surfaces cooler colors the dripping or layering of glazes on ceramics that are not wood fired the handcrafting of useful wares as opposed to sculptural work and a tendency to borrow forms and decorative effects from other regional artists In addition to demonstrating a methodology that can be applied to studies of other emergent regional traditions McGriff concludes that these styles and methods form a communal bond that inextricably links the processes of creating and sharing pottery in Michiana

Ochsenschlager, 2014-04-03 What can the present tell us about the past From 1968 to 1990 Edward Ochsenschlager conducted ethnoarchaeological fieldwork near a mound called al Hiba in the marshes of southern Iraq In examining the material culture of three tribes their use of mud reed wood and bitumen and their husbandry of cattle water buffalo and sheep he chronicles what is now a lost way of life He helps us understand ancient manufacturing processes an artifact's significance and the skill of those who create and use it and the substantial moral
