Improving Disaster Health Outcomes and Resilience Through Rapid Research: Implications for Public Health Policy and Practice Stephanie Rose Montesanti, Arthur Chan, Iain Walker, 2022-09-12 Hayman Fire Case Study ,2003 In 2002 much of the Front Range of the Rocky Mountains in Colorado was rich in dry vegetation as a result of fire exclusion and the droughty conditions that prevailed in recent years These dry and heavy fuel loadings were continuous along the South Platte River corridor located between Denver and Colorado Springs on the Front Range These topographic and fuel conditions combined with a dry and windy weather system centered over eastern Washington to produce ideal burning conditions The start of the Hayman Fire was timed and located perfectly to take advantage of these conditions resulting in a wildfire run in 1 day of over 60 000 acres and finally impacting over 138 000 acres The Hayman Fire Case Study involving more than 60 scientists and professionals from throughout the United States examined how the fire behaved the effects of fuel treatments on burn severity the emissions produced the ecological for example soil vegetation animals effects the home destruction postfire rehabilitation activities and the social and economic issues surrounding the Hayman Fire The Hayman Fire Case Study revealed much about wildfires and their interactions with both the social and natural environments As the largest fire in Colorado history it had a profound impact both locally and nationally The findings of this study will inform both private and public decisions on the management of natural resources and how individuals communities and organizations can prepare for wildfire events Kootenai National Forest (N.F.), Lower Big Creek ,2004 Climate Change and Air Pollution Rais Akhtar, Cosimo Palagiano, 2017-10-05 This book discusses regional and international climate change air pollution and human health scenarios The research from both industrialized and developing countries focuses on region specific perspectives of climate change impacts on air pollution After analyzing the variations of climate data over recent decades the authors consider the different effects of climate change on air pollution and health As stressed by the IPCC pollen smoke and ozone levels are likely to increase in a warming world affecting the health of residents of major cities Rising temperatures will worsen air quality through a combination of more ozone in cities bigger wild fires and worse pollen outbreaks according to a major UN climate report The report follows the World Health Organization in finding that air pollution is the world s greatest environmental health risk killing 7 million people in 2014 compared to 0 4 million deaths due to malaria Deteriorating air quality will most affect the elderly children people with chronic ill health and expectant mothers Another report suggests that more than 5 5 million people die prematurely each year due to air pollution with over half of those deaths occurring in China and India A study on the air pollution in the USA suggests that more than half of US population lives in areas with potentially dangerous air pollution and about six out of 10 of the top cities for air pollution in the USA are located in the state of California In the face of future climate change scientists have urged stronger emission controls to avoid worsening air pollution and the associated exacerbation of health problems especially in more populated regions of the world It is hoped that the implementation of the Paris Climate Agreement will help minimize air pollution Additionally the authors consider the various measures that different countries and groups of countries like the European Union have adopted to mitigate the problems arising from climate change and to safeguard the health of population The book examines the increasing incidence of diseases largely caused by climate change The countries regions covered in this study include the USA Northern Europe U K Southern Europe Italy Canada Australia East Asia Russia Hong Kong Taiwan Thailand Malaysia Indonesia India South Africa Mexico Brazil Caribbean countries and Argentina
