

USING VIDEOTAPE TO COMMUNICATE with Parents of Students with Severe Disabilities

PAUL A. ALBERTO
LINDA MECOLING
TERESA A. TAHER
JANIE THOMPSON

With the increasing retail distribution of reasonably priced camcorders, educators are discovering uses of video technology beyond student instruction (see box). Because of the development of home videocassette recorders (VCRs), reduction in their cost, and their appearance in numerous homes, video communication can be a practical means of communicating with parents. Videotape can provide parents with visual models of instruction, curriculum information, and evidence of their child's progress.

As part of their needs assessment for training in Georgia, the State Comprehensive System of Personnel Delivery Committee surveyed parents to determine their preferred means of having educational experiences provided to them. Of the 1,047 parents responding, 48% indicated that they would prefer videotape. Parents indicated that it is much easier for them to take a tape home than to schedule meetings and arrange childcare. By having these tapes at home, parents are able to view them repeatedly for clarification, review of instructions, and additional information and to share information and procedures with other family members.

TYPES OF VIDEOTAPE COMMUNICATIONS

The following are six suggested uses of videotape for communication with parents.

Progress Reports

Ongoing communication between parent and teacher is traditionally conducted through notes and phone calls to report student progress, to communicate activities to practice in the home and school, and to discuss behavior management concerns. A difficulty arising from this form of communication is a lack of clarity and subsequent confusion. Often the parent is asked to assist in implementation of instruction, use of adaptive devices, and generalization, all of which tend to be intricate and difficult to explain
