

Autistic Fatigue & Burnout

Coping Strategies

Unmasking

Allowing yourself to act naturally without worrying about your behaviour is an important step to help recovery.

Identify Triggers

Identifying patterns can help you understand what your triggers are. This will give you more control over situations and allow you to put strategies in place.

Rest & Re-charge

Stop and take time to rest to give your body time to recover.

Energy Counting

Plan and organise your activities based on your available energy levels.

Small Changes

- using earplugs to help sensory overload
- practicing meditation
- taking (more) breaks
- finding a quiet place where you can go to recharge when things get a little too much

Psychological Mechanisms and Mental Health in the Face of Current Conflicts and Crises Hubert Annen, Carl Castro, 2025-10-13 In the past two years humanity has been confronted with unprecedented crises most recently the war in Ukraine The flood of related media reports as well as refugee flows the looming energy shortage and individual fear of expansion of the conflict has forced the war into reality and has been made part of our everyday lives Against this backdrop the psychological impact and implications become apparent At the core of such an event it is members of the armed forces and their families who must find ways to deal with the experiences and their consequences In addition it is also essential to consider the affected population who suffer directly from the war are exposed to propaganda and whose morale willpower

and resilience influence the direction in which the conflict develops In this context how the individual deals with such events are of paramount importance For example a certain war fatigue among the population of European countries can lead to a decline in idealistic but also material support These psychological aspects also play a role for members of humanitarian organizations or similar groupings that are involved in a supporting capacity or in conflict management who in turn must face specific mental challenges This raises the fundamental question of how psychological knowledge and respective methods can contribute to preventing and ending such conflicts

Compassion Fatigue Charles R. Figley, 2013-06-17 First published in 1995 Traumatology or the field of traumatic stress studies has become a dominant focus of interest in the mental health fields only in the past decade Yet the origin of the study of human reactions to traumatic events can be traced to the earliest medical writings in Kahun Papyrus published in 1900 B C in Egypt Many factors account for the recent emergence of this field including a growing awareness of the long term consequences of shocking events Among these consequences are violence toward others extraordinary depression dysfunctional behavior and a plethora of medical maladies associated with emotional stress This is the latest in a series of books that have focused on the immediate and long term consequences of highly stressful events The purposes of the book then are a to introduce the concept of compassion fatigue as a natural and disruptive by product of working with traumatized and troubled clients b to provide a theoretical basis for the assessment and treatment of compassion stress and compassion fatigue c to explain the difference between compassion fatigue and PTSD burnout and countertransference d to identify innovative methods for treating compassion fatigue in therapists and e to suggest methods for preventing compassion fatigue
