Compassion Focused Therapy* Charlie Heriot-Maitland,Eleanor Longden,2022-06-15 Relating to Voices helps people who hear voices to develop a more compassionate understanding and relationship with their voices In this book authors Charlie and Eleanor create a warm and caring tone for the reader and a respectful tone for their voices With the help of regular check in boxes the book guides the reader towards an understanding of what voices are what they may represent and how we can learn to work with them in a way that leads to a more peaceful relationship It offers a shift away from viewing voices as the enemies towards viewing them as potential allies in emotional problem solving This approach may be different to some others that readers have come across which can often be about challenging voices suppressing them distracting from them or getting rid of them The Compassion Focused Therapy CFT approach suggests that we can learn to relate to both voices and ourselves in a way that is less about conflict and more about cooperation This book will be a useful companion for voice hearers as well as for their supporters and allies in their journey of self help It will also be of use to mental health and social service workers Black Software Charlton D. McIlwain,2019-10-01 Black Software for the first time chronicles the long relationship between African Americans computing technology and the Internet Through new archival sources and the voices of many of those who lived and made this history this book centralizes African Americans role in the Internet s creation and

Musical Record ,1905 Current perspectives on the mechanisms of auditory hallucinations in clinical and non-clinical populations Johanna C. Badcock, Frank Larøi, Paul Allen, Kelly M. Diederer, 2014-03-07 There has been a recent surge of interest in auditory hallucinations AH in schizophrenia compared to those experienced by non clinical i e healthy individuals This interest stems in no small part from a keen awareness of the fact that progress in developing more effective treatments for AH in psychosis has been seriously hampered by our limited understanding of the cognitive and biological mechanisms involved The prevailing notion that AH in clinical and non clinical populations share the same features and underlying mechanisms the continuum hypothesis has been seriously challenged by a growing list of differences as well as similarities between these groups At the phenomenological level this is exemplified in the highly negative content of AH in patients and the markedly earlier age of onset of AH in non patients Similarly several recent studies point to significant differences in cognition language lateralization and possibly dopamine function between these groups These findings have important implications for the design of future studies and raise considerable doubt about the adequacy of modelling the functional mechanisms of clinical AH on the basis of non clinical populations In short the time seems ripe to re evaluate the continuum hypothesis and provide a forum to present alternative perspectives on the functional pathways leading to AH in clinical and non clinical groups Such a forum is also timely in view of the renewed interest in AH in other non schizophrenic clinical groups again examining similarities and differences between such groups Preliminary studies for instance have shown that AH in certain clinical populations e g bipolar disorder borderline personality disorder dissociative disorder share similar phenomenological features with AH in schizophrenia However the implications of such findings are not fully understood and studies have not adequately examined potential differences between AH in these groups The goal of this Frontiers Research Topic therefore is take the opportunity to bring together research exploring differences and similarities in mechanisms of AH in clinical and non clinical groups and to stimulate the development of new explanatory models which explicitly link the phenomenological characteristics of AH with underlying mechanisms

Hallucinations: New Interventions Supporting People with Distressing Voices and/or Visions Simon McCarthy-Jones,,Mark Hayward,Flavie Waters,Iris E. Sommer,2016-12-04 Hallucinations can occur across the five sensory modalities auditory visual olfactory tactile and gustatory Whilst they have the potential to be benign or even highly valued they can often be devastating experiences associated with distress impaired social and occupational functioning self harm and suicide Those who experience hallucinations in this latter manner may do so within the context of a wide range of psychiatric diagnoses including schizophrenia bipolar disorder borderline personality disorder and post traumatic stress disorder The only routinely available interventions for people distressed by hallucinations are antipsychotic drugs which date from the introduction of chlorpromazine in the 1950s and manualized cognitive behavioral therapy which originated in the 1990s These interventions do not help all people distressed by hallucinations and in the case of antipsychotic medication come with notable side effects There has hence been great interest in new interventions to support people distressed by hallucinations The goal of this Frontiers Research Topic is to present a collection of papers on new developments in clinical interventions for those distressed by hallucinations In the psychiatric condition that remains most strongly associated with hallucinations schizophrenia the majority 70% of people will have experienced hallucinations in the auditory modality approximately a third will have experienced visual hallucinations and a smaller minority will have experienced hallucinations in other modalities Consistent with this prevalence this collection focusses on auditory and visual hallucinations This is not to minimise the potential distress that can occur from hallucinations in other modalities For example tactile hallucinations particularly when stemming from earlier experiences of sexual abuse can be highly distressing and improved ways to help sufferers of such experiences are also needed In summary this collection aims to result in an interdisciplinary collection of papers which will appeal to a wide readership spanning all with an interest in this area the Great War is now deceased but they have left behind them an enormous collection of oral history which captures the authentic voices of the front line soldiers In Voices from the Front oral historian Peter Hart brings together accounts from across the conflict from soldiers sailors and airmen from officers and privates alike In the course of his research he talked to men who saw their friends die in front of them who were seriously wounded themselves men who refused to fight on principle and those whose indomitable spirit carried them through thick and thin Sometimes they were there at crucial turning points in the war going over the top in the slaughter of the Somme in 1916 or punching through the German lines to victory in 1918 and sometimes they sweated toiled and suffered on a forgotten front thousands of miles from home In the vein of The Beauty and the Sorrow this is the First World War seen through the eyes of the men who experienced it for themselves
