

A dramatic scene of a volcanic eruption. A massive, billowing plume of white smoke or ash rises from a dark, rocky crater. The surrounding landscape is rugged and rocky, with some green vegetation visible on the slopes. The sky is a clear, pale blue. The overall atmosphere is one of intense natural power and danger.

The Adaptive Military James Burk, 2017-07-05 When the cold war ended many hoped it signified enhanced prospects for a more stable world However despite favorable political developments the post cold war period has been marked by turbulence uncertainty and challenge The actions of rogue states such as Iraq and North Korea have made nuclear proliferation more unpredictable Violence in Somalia and Bosnia has cast doubt on the viability of international peacekeeping arrangements Hopes for expanding democratization have been dimmed by assertions that the values of liberal democracy and human rights are incompatible with non Western cultures The Adaptive Military describes how military security policies and practices have adapted to these new times and explains why such changes are necessary The central argument is that current conflicts have been shaped by long term trends which increased the number and complexity of threats that the developed world is supposed to meet and correspondingly decreased the stock of social and political options available to meet them Although the authors differ in their assessments about the current prospects for peace and ways to maintain security the issues they address are as critical as they were at the end of the Cold War Mobilizing resources and political support for remote and difficult enterprises will always remain contentious but if we recognize the hazard of letting violence run unopposed throughout the world then we bear some responsibility to consider how it might be checked This volume is an exercise of that responsibility It will be of great interest to experts in military studies and international relations

The Military In New Times James Burk, Robert J Waldman, David R Segal, Charles C Moskos, 2019-06-26 What role will armed forces play in a world that is turbulent yet no longer organized by the bipolar conflict of East and West In this volume leading experts from several disciplines assess the rapidly changing global strategic and cultural landscape examining how it will affect the responsibilities and social standing of the modern military There are provocative disagreements among the contributors especially over whether we should expect and prepare for another global war However the contributors generally agree on several broad themes that guide their analysis Arguing that the Cold War has masked basic trends that have been reshaping the international system for a long time they suggest that the sovereign states dominance of the international system is rapidly coming to an end as multinational ethnic regional and religious groups to name a few increasingly affect the course of global affairs In the absence of a clear enemy the military faces an identity crisis In the postmodern atmosphere of this multicentric global order authority is fragmented and the exercise of any one authority is subject to greater scrutiny and challenge The military has become more accepting of a variety of values life styles and attitudes toward its tasks At the same time support for the military s mission is difficult to win requiring endless justification The authors believe that the principal missions for the military in these new times are peacekeeping peacemaking and humanitarian assistance They examine the prospects for successful operations in these areas taking into account the cultural lag between world structures that favor increased multinational peacekeeping forces and individual nations that supply token resources to support such efforts This volume provides a sophisticated and thought provoking perspective on the future role of the military in the coming decades It is sure to enrich the vigorous debate surrounding these issues The Log ,1936

The Use of Force After the Cold War H. W. Brands, 2003 The end of the Cold War created a near euphoria that nations might resort less to military force and that the Doomsday nuclear clock might stop short of midnight Events soon dashed the higher of these hopes but the nature of military force and the uses to which it might be put did appear to be changing In this volume eleven leading scholars apply their particular expertise to understanding what if anything has changed and what has not why the patterns are as they are and just what the future might bring Together the authors address political moral and military factors in the decision to use or avoid military force Case studies of the Gulf War and Bosnia analyses of the role of women in the armed forces and the role of intelligence agencies and studies of inter branch and inter agency tensions and cooperation inform the various chapters A strong and thoughtful introduction by H W Brands provides the context that ties together the themes and perspectives Scholars in this distinguished collection include Stephen Biddle Alexander L George J Bryan Hehir Andrew Kohut Andrew Krepinevich James M Lindsay Charles Moskos Williamson Murray Bruce Russett Tony Smith and Susan L Woodward The volume will help scholars policy makers and concerned citizens contemplate national alternatives when force threatens
