Music, Modernity, and the Global Imagination Veit Erlmann, 1999-06-03 How was Africa seen by the West during the colonial period How do Europeans and Americans conceive of Africa in today's postcolonial era Such questions have preoccupied anthropologists historians and literary scholars for years But few have asked the reverse how did and do Africans see Europe and the United States Fewer still have wondered how Western images of Africa and African representations of the West might mirror one another In a detailed study spanning from the late nineteenth century to the present renowned anthropologist and ethnomusicologist Veit Erlmann examines the very creation of a global imagination for black South Africans Europeans and African Americans To this end he explores two striking episodes in the history of black South African music The first is a pair of tours made by two black South African choirs in England and America in the early 1890s the second is a series of engagements with the international music industry as experienced by the premier choral group Ladysmith Black Mambazo after the release of Paul Simon's celebrated Graceland album in 1986 Readers will find the cast of characters involved in these intertwined and international dramas at once telling and impressive Among the many players are African National Congress co founder Saul Msane Queen Victoria African American musician and impresario Orpheus McAdoo Xhosa Christian prophet Ntsikana W E B Du Bois Michael Jackson and Spike Lee Music Modernity and the Global Imagination tells the story of how these artists activists and agents effectively invented each other in travel diaries religious hymns concert performances music videos Broadway plays and autobiographies Erlmann also argues that the resultant mixture of myths and fictions as distinctly imagined by these diverse historical actors entangled South Africa and the West in ways that often obscured the newly emergent global imbalances of power or else blurred the polarities of the colonial and postcolonial world Ultimately this book reports on a transatlantic dialogue that carries direct and profound implications for the world's arts and cultures It is the black diasporic discussion between South Africa and the West and it is a conversation about society music and Utopia that is still in progress That Half-barbaric Twang Karen Linn, 1994 Long a symbol of American culture the banjo actually originated in Africa before European Americans adopted it Karen Linn shows how the banjo despite design innovations and several modernizing agendas has failed to escape its image as a half barbaric instrument symbolic of antimodernism and sentimentalism Caught in the morass of American racial attitudes and often used to express ambivalence toward modern industrial society the banjo stood in opposition to the official values of rationalism modernism and belief in the beneficence of material progress Linn uses popular literature visual arts advertisements film performance practices instrument construction and decoration and song lyrics to illustrate how notions about the banjo have changed Linn also traces the instrument from its African origins through the 1980s alternating between themes of urban modernization and rural nostalgia She examines the banjo fad of bourgeois Northerners during the late nineteenth century the African American banjo tradition and the commercially popular cultural image of the southern black banjo player the banjo's use in ragtime and early jazz and the image of the white Southerner and mountaineer as banjo player
