The Myth Of The Machine:

The Myth of the Individual Charles Wesley Wood,1927 Lewis Mumford, a Life Donald L. Miller,2002 Malcolm Cowley called Lewis Mumford the last of the great humanists and indeed in more than six decades of writing Mumford made contributions to history philosophy literature art architectural criticism and urban planning The author of some thirty books Mumford produced a body of work almost unequaled in the twentieth century for its range and richness A New York Times Notable Book Donald Miller s engagingly written biography reveals Mumford s full and fascinating life Based on ten years of research and unprecedented access to original and private papers Miller penetrates Mumford s reserved public persona and takes in the complete man his works as well as his days as he struggles to transform the world and his own life in decades marked by unparalleled change Miller is an excellent critical guide to Mumford s voluminous writing The New Yorker A gracefully written biography Francesca McKeon San Francisco Chronicle With this large large spirited life of Lewis Mumford Miller takes his place in the first rank of contemporary American biographers David McCullough The Myth of Artificial Intelligence Erik J. Larson,2021-04-06 Futurists are certain that humanlike AI is on the horizon but in fact engineers have no idea how to program human reasoning AI reasons from statistical correlations across data sets while common sense is based heavily on conjecture Erik Larson argues that hyping existing methods will only hold us back from developing truly humanlike AI Technology, Mythology and the Search for Meaning Douglas Francis,2023-11-15 This book offers a big picture look at the evolution of Western thought on technology by focusing on seven periods when there was a paradigm shift in perspective A techno myth is used to identify shape and capture the beliefs of each era Drawing from philosophy literature social sciences physical sciences mythology and cultural history the book brings to life the ideas of the great thinkers and the ancient myths What their message tells us is that we have failed to learn from the mistakes of the past We have allowed technology to take control of our lives and narrowed our thinking to a one dimensional materialistic perspective We have become prisoners in Max Weber s metaphoric iron cage But they also tell us how to free ourselves by humanizing technology so that humans are in control which is explored in depth in this book The Machine in the University Terry S. Reynolds,1987 The Myth of the Ruling Class James Hans Meisel,1896 Riding the New York Subway Stefan Hohne,2021-02-16 A history of New York subway passengers as they navigated the system s constraints while striving for individuality or at least a smooth ride When the subway first opened with much fanfare on October 27 1904 New York became a city of underground passengers almost overnight In this book Stefan H hne examines how the experiences of subway passengers in New York City were intertwined with cultural changes in urban mass society throughout the twentieth century H hne argues that underground transportation which early passengers found both exhilarating and distressing changed perceptions interactions and the organization of everyday life The Mining Congress Journal ,1930
Engineering and Finance ,1929 The Machine-wreckers Ernst Toller,1923 Pacific Factory Developer ,1930

Fibre Containers ,1930 People v. Barbara, 400 MICH 352 (1977) ,1977 54774 Public Service Management
,1929 The Myth of Peace Artur Victoria,2025-11-08 Conflict once had a recognizable form It marched beneath flags crossed borders occupied cities and left its scars upon the earth War began with declarations and ended with treaties Peace was simply the interval between these moments a period defined by order and the absence of violence This pattern became so familiar that it solidified into assumption war was exceptional peace the natural state The twenty first century has shattered that assumption Conflict has not disappeared it has dissolved It has seeped into the circuitry of globalisation into data flows markets and the architecture of perception Its movements are ambient rather than explosive subtle rather than spectacular We live in a world that speaks the language of peace while operating through continuous strategic competition Coercion persists only quieter and more deeply embedded in everyday systems This book begins with a stark thesis peace today is not the opposite of war but its modern expression The boundary that once separated war from peace has eroded Modern infrastructures digital platforms supply chains financial networks and algorithmic systems carry strategic pressure without revealing it The decisive battles of our time occur not on frontlines but in server farms not through destruction but distortion not by seizing territory but by shaping perception Reality itself has become the contested terrain This is the gray zone not a space between war and peace but the permanent condition of contemporary power Ambiguity deniability and informational manipulation now function as core strategic principles The book examines the silent arsenal of modern conflict cyber operations economic coercion digital propaganda and dual use technologies and explores how globalisation has transformed every system into potential leverage Stability can no longer be equated with the absence of open warfare it depends on trust coherence and resilient institutions To understand the myth of peace is to see conflict as it truly is continuous embedded and fought through meaning rather than force Book Review Index ,1970 Every 3rd issue is a quarterly cumulation Highways in College Composition Homer Andrew Watt,Oscar Cargill,1930 Trained Men. ...
,1928 West at Work ,1922 The Evolution of the Machine Ritchie Calder,1968 Traces the history of the machine from the tools of prehistoric man to the electronic computer and other present day technological innovations
