The Searcher Velona Pilcher,1929      The Searcher ,2000      The Theory of Search Games and Rendezvous Steve Alpern,Shmuel Gal,2006-04-10 Search Theory is one of the original disciplines within the field of Operations Research It deals with the problem faced by a Searcher who wishes to minimize the time required to find a hidden object or target The Searcher chooses a path in the search space and finds the target when he is sufficiently close to it Traditionally the target is assumed to have no motives of its own regarding when it is found it is simply stationary and hidden according to a known distribution e g oil or its motion is determined stochastically by known rules e g a fox in a forest The problems dealt with in this book assume on the contrary that the target is an independent player of equal status to the Searcher who cares about when he is found We consider two possible motives of the target and divide the book accordingly Book I considers the zero sum game that results when the target here called the Hider does not want to be found Such problems have been called Search Games with the zero sum qualifier understood Book II considers the opposite motive of the target namely that he wants to be found In this case the Searcher and the Hider can be thought of as a team of agents simply called Player I and Player II with identical aims and the coordination problem they jointly face is called the Rendezvous Search Problem      The Consciousness' Drive Charles Cole,2018-09-18 What is the uniquely human factor in finding and using information to produce new knowledge Is there an underlying aspect of our thinking that cannot be imitated by the AI equipped machines that will increasingly dominate our lives This book answers these questions and tells us about our consciousness its drive or intention in seeking information in the world around us and how we are able to construct new knowledge from this information The book is divided into three parts each with an introduction and a conclusion that relate the theories and models presented to the real world experience of someone using a search engine First Part I defines the exceptionality of human consciousness and its need for new information and how uniquely among all other species we frame our interactions with the world Part II then investigates the problem of finding our real information need during information searches and how our exceptional ability to frame our interactions with the world blocks us from finding the information we really need Lastly Part III details the solution to this framing problem and its operational implications for search engine design for everyone whose objective is the production of new knowledge In this book Charles Cole deliberately writes in a conversational style for a broader readership keeping references to research material to the bare minimum Replicating the structure of a detective novel he builds his arguments towards a climax at the end of the book For our video game video on demand times he has visualized the ideas that form the book s thesis in over 90 original diagrams And above all he establishes a link between information need and knowledge production in evolutionary psychology and thus bases his arguments in our origins as a species how we humans naturally think and how we naturally search for new information because our consciousness drives us to need it
