The Structure of Canadian History John L. Finlay, Douglas Neil Sprague, 1997 Britain and the Origins of Canadian Confederation, 1837-67 Ged Martin, 1995 In Britain and the Origins of Canadian Confederation 1837 1867 Ged Martin offers a sceptical review of claims that Confederation answered all the problems facing the provinces and examines in detail British perceptions of Canada and ideas about its future The major British contribution to the coming of Confederation is to be found not in the aftermath of the Quebec conference where the imperial role was mainly one of bluff and exhortation but prior to 1864 in a vague consensus among opinion formers that the provinces would one day unite Faced with an inescapable need to secure legislation at Westminster for a new political structure British North American politicians found they could work within the context of a metropolitan preference for intercolonial union Pre-Confederation Canada John L. Finlay, 1990 Written by two well known historians this text presents a detailed chronological account of Canadian history from the country's earliest beginnings as a wilderness frontier to its emergence as an independent nation The story unfolds from a power and politics perspective and picks up the themes of social and economic history It incorporates recent research and historical debates and reflects current interpretations of native peoples Media, Structures, and Power Robert E. Babe, 2011-01-01 Media Structures and Power provides a sense of Babe's trajectory of thought over several decades as well as his key role in the development of the communications field in Canada Kevin Dowler Department of Communication Studies York University Post-confederation Canada Douglas N. Sprague, 1990 The Banking System of Canada Benjamin Haggott Beckhart, Henry Vibert Cann, J. Courtland Elliott, 1929 Special report on the system of education in Ontario. Sectional repr. from 'Special reports on educ. subjects'. , 1901 The Makers of Canada: Baldwin. Lafontaine. Hincks Duncan Campbell Scott, 1910 German Banking Structure, Pricing and Competition Benjamin H. Dietrich, 2009 The German banking system is characterized by high fragmentation low profitability and low foreign ownership Main reason for this is its particular structure that can best be described as forced segmentation This structure produces local banking markets The book argues that local bank competition is not as pronounced as national concentration ratios predict and presents a bank pricing study which indicates that local banks banks located in less densely populated areas and less productive banks tend to charge higher prices for retail bank services than banks that operate nationally. These results as well as lessons drawn from international reforms suggest that the German banking system could benefit from cross pillar consolidation which promises to export competition from the national to local banking markets. Last but not least the book analyzes political economy implications of banking reforms and provides suggestions on status quo resolution by identifying ways to facilitate reform implementation in the German banking system.
