Handbook Of Child And Adolescent Outpatient, Day Treatment A Harinder S. Ghuman, Richard M.

Sarles,2013-06-17 In the past few years there has been a major shift in the mental health care of child and adolescents from inpatient care to non hospital community ambulatory settings Economic pressures have primarily driven this change in service delivery Insurance companies and managed care organizations have not only restricted access to hospitalization and limited length of stays but additionally have sharply reduced reimbursements for treatments State and federal policies for inpatient treatment and reimbursement have followed similar trends As a result mental health planners have attempted to develop programs to deal with this trend of restricted inpatient care shifting treatment of children and adolescents to home and community settings Some of these new programs are well planned and others are hastily planned and implemented The pitfall to this community approach is that there is a population of chronically disturbed children and adolescents and highly stressed parents often lacking adequate personal and family resource who may not respond to these new less restrictive less costly community approaches which potentially may lead to an unsafe and dangerous situation for the child adolescent family and the community With this in mind the purpose of this book is to provide comprehensive and up to date information regarding child and adolescent outpatient day treatment and community psychiatry The emphasis of this book is to provide practical knowledge through clinical case illustrations and to explain various strategies in a detailed fashion Group

Counseling: Concepts and Procedures Fourth Edition Robert C. Berg, Garry L. Landreth, Kevin A. Fall, 2013-08-21 The fourth edition of this well respected text first published in 1979 is a timely and thorough revision of the existing material Group Counseling has done well over the years due in large part to its comprehensive history of group work as a counseling specialty the practical nature of the authors explanations the diversity of sources the authors draw upon and the international acclaim of Dr Landreth s work on play and filial therapy This text will provide both novice and experienced counselors with a framework from which to expand their group counseling skills and knowledge Group Counseling

widely used and praised text providing both novice and experienced counselors with a framework from which to expand their group counseling skills and knowledge This fifth edition has been thoroughly revised and updated to reflect the newest work in the field the 2009 CACREP standards and the Association for Specialists in Group Work practice standards As in the previous editions the authors draw upon their extensive experience and share their own styles of leading groups as a personal and practical way to illustrate the differences in group leadership Berg Landreth and Fall present a thorough discussion of the rationale for using group counseling with an emphasis on the group s role as a preventive environment and as a setting for self discovery The authors examine the group facilitator s internal frame of reference and ways to overcome of initial anxiety about leading groups and they also explore typical problems in the development facilitation and termination of the group process and provide suggested solutions Application of group counseling is considered with children adolescents adults as well as with special populations such as abused children juvenile offenders and individuals with emotional difficulties A helpful glossary of group counseling terminology provides a quick reference source for important terms New to this edition are a chapter on diversity and social justice in group work an expanded chapter on co leadership a topic often ignored in other group counseling texts separate chapters on group work with children and group work with adolescents so that reader can focus more easily on the unique aspects of working with each population a chapter on evaluating groups at the leader group and individual member levels A collection of supplemental resources is available online to benefit both instructors and students Instructors will find PowerPoint slides and test banks to aid in conducting their courses and students can access questions for thought and reflection to supplement their review of the chapters in the text These materials can be accessed at www.routledgejournalhealth.com cw Berg Adolescent Group Psychotherapy Fern J. Halperin, 1996 Group Therapy With Children and Adolescents explores a major treatment modality often used with adult populations but rarely considered for child and adolescent treatments With contributions from experts in the United States and abroad this book looks at the effectiveness in both treatment and cost of group therapy as it applies to these particular age groups As psychiatric techniques have evolved many varieties of group therapies have been developed and applied to child and adolescent psychiatry Included in this book is an in depth discussion not only of the theory and practice of group psychotherapy as used with children and adolescents but also of the many varieties that have evolved as clinicians have sought new ways of tackling old problems Include are chapters on adolescents with eating disorders suicidal adolescents and adolescents with drug problems Inpatient outpatient education oriented and more traditional groups are all considered Adolescence ,1994 Group Exercises for Enhancing Social Skills and Self-esteem SiriNam S. Khalsa, 1996 Two uniquely creative collections of exercises for enhancing self esteem utilizing proven social emotional and cognitive skill building techniques These exercises are useful in therapeutic psychoeducational and recreational settings The adaptability of the exercises makes them effective with groups of children adolescents and adults from diverse backgrounds with a wide variety of problems concerns interests and abilities Facilitating Group Process Shemika M. Brooks,2017 Residential treatment centers are restrictive and intensive care environments intended to address the needs of adolescents with high risk emotional and behavioral dysfunction and issues of complex trauma Individual milieu and group therapies are key treatment modalities for adolescents in these settings While collective treatment outcomes are commonly discussed in previous research there is a limited body of literature detailing the provision of the specialized services offered especially group psychotherapy which targets the critical task of interpersonal development for adolescents through group process Many features of residential treatment settings differentiate them from settings for which standard models of treatment were originated Thus there are some significant disparities between theory and practice A comprehensive understanding of group therapy services for adolescents in residential treatment centers particularly those with process components requires a phenomenological examination of the treatment process as implemented by clinicians with interdisciplinary mental health backgrounds in these settings This exploratory study investigated the experiences of clinicians facilitating groups with process components for adolescents in residential treatment centers Ten clinicians who have facilitated such groups within the last five years participated in the study which used a qualitative research design Participants were interviewed using a semi structured questionnaire Themes emerging from their responses were analyzed using grounded theory techniques Identified themes included a preparation for clinical work in residential treatment centers b impact of variety of contextual factors c clinician influence on facilitation of group process d the need to move to system level trauma informed care e impact of direct care staff on group process f attention to and focus on individual needs g balancing structure and flexibility in group facilitation h variety in group types as treatment component and i the benefit of group process for adolescents in residential treatment centers Implications for future research direction training needs group clinicians facilitating these groups and residential treatment centers were discussed
