The Genesis of the Chicago Renaissance Mary Hricko, 2013-09-05 This study examines the genesis of Chicago's two identified literary renaissance periods 1890-1920 and 1930-1950 through the writings of Dreiser, Hughes, Wright, and Farrell. The relationship of these four writers demonstrates a continuity of thought between the two renaissance periods. By noting the affinities of these writers' patterns such as the rise of the city novel, the development of urban realism, and the shift to modernism, are identified as significant connections between the two periods. Although Dreiser, Wright, and Farrell are more commonly thought of as Chicago writers, this study argues that Langston Hughes is a transitional pivotal figure between the two periods. Through close readings and contextualization, the influence of Chicago writing on American literature in such areas as realism and naturalism, as well as proletarian and ethnic fiction, becomes apparent.

Shifting Shadows S. E. Simmonds, 1889 The Seductions of Emily Dickinson Robert McClure Smith, 1996 What makes Emily Dickinson such a fascinating poet Although she left no personal poetics she did define her own response to poetry as an immediate sensual reaction If I read a book and it makes my whole body so cold no fire can ever warm me I know that is poetry If I feel physically as if the top of my head were taken off I know that is poetry L 342a Presumably her own poetry is most significant not in what it communicates to a reader but in what it does to a reader Is the continued popular success of that poetry not conclusive evidence of its capacity to elicit a similarly spontaneous visceral response from its readers And is Dickinson's critical reception not the visible proof of the perpetuation of a powerful and uncanny reading seduction Relocating Dickinson within her own culture reveals the genesis of her rhetoric of seduction But the consequences of the rhetorical seduction of antebellum readers still impact readers today Why do critical studies of the poet so often identify her as the classic analysand the female hysteric Because transference is frequently the engine of analysis misshaping the reader's relationship with the text by introducing a past scene of seduction into a present interpretive context Recent critical interpretations of Dickinson's poetry exhibit a distinct homology between the interpreters own prevailing fascinations and the apparent thematic concerns of the poetic text they analyze These interpretations suggest that to analyze this poet is to put oneself under analysis to attempt her seduction is to be oneself seduced
