Wing and Wing J. Fenimore Cooper, 2015-06-25 Excerpt from Wing and Wing The charms of the Tyrrhenian Sea have been sung since the days of Homer That the Mediterranean generally and its beautiful boundaries of Alps and Apennines with its deeply indented and irregular shores forms the most delightful region of the known earth in all that relates to climate productions and physical formation will be readily enough conceded by the traveller The countries that border on this midland water with their promontories buttressing a mimic ocean their mountain sides teeming with the picturesque of human life their heights crowned with watch towers their rocky shelves consecrated by hermitages and their unrivalled sheet dotted with sails rigged as it might be expressly to produce effect in a picture form a sort of world apart that is replete with charms which not only fascinate the beholder but which linger in the memories of the absent like visions of a glorious past Our present business is with this fragment of a creation that is so eminently beautiful even in its worst aspects but which is so often marred by the passions of man in its best While all admit how much nature has done for the Mediterranean none will deny that until quite recently it has been the scene of more ruthless violence and of deeper personal wrongs perhaps than any other portion of the globe About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
