

HOW RED WINE IS MADE

WINE FOLLY

Harvest grapes

The vintage (harvest) period for red wine starts in late August and continues through October, depending on the wine region. Grapes are harvested in the morning, when they are still cool.

Prepare grapes

Wine grapes are not cleaned. Some wineries remove stems (de-stemmed wine) but most do not. Stems are left on grapes to add flavor, tannin, and texture. Some wineries use a destemmer to remove stems.

Clarification

Clarification (fining) is the process of removing suspended particles from wine. This is done by adding fining agents like egg whites or bentonite. The wine is then filtered through a fine mesh to remove any remaining particles.

Bottling

Bottling is the final step in wine production. The wine is poured into bottles and sealed with a cork. Some wineries use a bottling machine to automate the process.

Bottle aging

Some wines benefit from aging in the bottle. This allows the wine to develop more complex flavors and aromas over time.

Press

After the grapes are destemmed, they are crushed. The juice is then pressed from the skins and seeds. This is done using a wine press. The remaining solids are called pomace.

Fermentation

Wine is fermented in a barrel or tank. The yeast converts the sugars in the juice into alcohol and carbon dioxide. This process can take several weeks to several months, depending on the wine.

Add yeast

Yeast is added to the juice to start the fermentation process. The yeast converts the sugars in the juice into alcohol and carbon dioxide. This process can take several weeks to several months, depending on the wine.

Malolactic

Malolactic fermentation (MLF) is a secondary fermentation process. It converts malic acid into lactic acid, which softens the wine's acidity and adds a buttery flavor.

Aging

Wine is aged in barrels or tanks for several months to several years. This allows the wine to develop more complex flavors and aromas over time.

Blending

The winemaker blends different grape varieties or barrels together to create the final wine. This process allows the winemaker to adjust the wine's flavor, acidity, and tannin levels.
