compassionate wise and genial humanity Bodies In Motion and At Rest Thomas Lynch, 2011-07-31 The facts of life and death remain the same We live and die we love and grieve we breed and disappear And between these existential gravities we search for meaning save our memories leave a record for those who will remember us So writes Thomas Lynch in Bodies in Motion and at Rest the second collection of essays by the award winning author of The Undertaking As poet and funeral director Lynch examines the relations between the literary and the mortuary arts the connection between obsequies and prosodies the effort to give voice to unspeakable things great love great heartbreak great wonder great pain how icons metaphors and ritualised speech are engaged in poems and in funerals The essays assembled here explore a species at the intersection of millennia beleaguered by choices and changes encumbered by merger and acquisition numbed by maths and technologies in search of the meaning of Life and Time our lives and times In an age that seeks to define human experience in retail high tech or pop psyche terms these wise exquisite essays explore the distance between birth and death the condition of the human being and the state of ceasing to be The Ultimate Journey James O'Reilly, Sean O'Reilly, Richard

Sterling, 2000 The Ultimate Journey provides an inspiring look across all religious and geographic boundaries into life's final adventure revealing how much dying has to teach us about living Heart Beats Catherine Robson, 2015-03-22 Many people in Great Britain and the United States can recall elderly relatives who remembered long stretches of verse learned at school decades earlier yet most of us were never required to recite in class Heart Beats is the first book to examine how poetry recitation came to assume a central place in past curricular programs and to investigate when and why the once mandatory exercise declined Telling the story of a lost pedagogical practice and its wide ranging effects on two sides of the Atlantic

Catherine Robson explores how recitation altered the ordinary people who committed poems to heart and changed the worlds in which they lived Heart Beats begins by investigating recitation's progress within British and American public educational systems over the course of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries and weighs the factors that influenced which poems were most frequently assigned Robson then scrutinizes the recitational fortunes of three short works that were once classroom classics Felicia Hemans's Casabianca Thomas Gray's Elegy Written in a Country Churchyard and Charles Wolfe's Burial of Sir John Moore after Corunna To conclude the book considers W E Henley's Invictus and Rudyard Kipling's If asking why the idea of the memorized poem arouses such different responses in the United States and Great Britain today Focusing on vital connections between poems individuals and their communities Heart Beats is an important study of the history and power of memorized poetry
