Oldroyd, 1990-07-25 The Highlands Controversy is a rich and perceptive account of the third and last major dispute in nineteenth century geology stemming from the work of Sir Roderick Murchison. The earlier Devonian and Cambrian Silurian controversies centered on whether the strata of Devon and Wales should be classified by lithological or paleontological criteria but the Highlands dispute arose from the difficulties the Scottish Highlands presented to geologists who were just learning to decipher the very complex processes of mountain building and metamorphism. David Oldroyd follows this controversy into the last years of the nineteenth century as geology was transformed by increasing professionalization and by the development of new field and laboratory techniques. In telling this story Oldroyd's aim is to analyze how scientific knowledge is constructed within a competitive scientific community, how theory, empirical findings, and social factors interact in the formation of knowledge. Oldroyd uses archival material and his own extensive reconstruction of the nineteenth century fieldwork in a case study showing how detailed maps and sections made it possible to understand the exceptionally complex geological structure of the Highlands. An invaluable addition to the history of geology, The Highlands Controversy also makes important contributions to our understanding of the social and conceptual processes of scientific work, especially in times of heated dispute.

The Mountains are Calling Jonny Muir, 2018-05-17 Longlisted for the William Hill Sports Book of the Year 2018. Jonny Muir was a nine year old boy when the silhouette of a runner in the glow of sunset on the Malvern Hills caught his eye. A fascination for running in high places was born, a fascination that would direct him to Scotland. Running and racing, Jonny became the mountainside silhouette that first inspired him. His exploits inevitably led to Scotland's supreme test of hill running, Ramsay's Round, a daunting 60 mile circuit of twenty four mountains, climbing the equivalent height of Mount Everest and culminating on Ben Nevis to be completed within twenty four hours.
