Transnational Corporations Armaments And Development:

Transnational Corporations, Armaments and Development Helena Tuomi, Raimo Väyrynen, 1982 Transnational Corporations, Armaments, and Development Helena Tuomi, Raimo Väyrynen, 1980 Transnational Corporations, Armaments, and Development Helena Tuomi, Raimo Väyrynen, 1982 Corporations and International Lawmaking Stephen Tully, 2007 The classical model of international lawmaking posits governments as exclusively authoritative actors. However, commercially oriented entities have long been protagonists within the prevailing international legal order, concluding contracts and resolving disputes with governments. Is the international legal personality of corporations undergoing further qualitative transformations? Corporations influence the State practice constitutive of custom and create, refashion, or challenge normative rules. The corporate willingness to fill legal lacunae where governments do not exercise their full regulatory responsibility is also observable through resort to alternative legal mechanisms. Corporations moreover contribute directly to treaty negotiations and occupy crucial roles during subsequent implementation. Indeed, an analysis of the access conditions and participatory modalities for non-State actors could support a right to participate under common international procedural law. Their substantive contributions are also evident when corporations participate in enforcing international law against governments through national courts, diplomatic protection, including the WTO and arbitration, including NAFTA. However, the practice of intergovernmental organizations reveals several challenges, including managing corporate interaction with developing country governments and other non-State actors. Acknowledging corporate contributions also has important implications for national regulatory autonomy, the ability of governments to mediate contested policy issues, the democratic legitimacy of the contemporary lawmaking process, and an understanding of consent as the underlying basis for international law.

The Structure of the Defense Industry Nicole Ball, Milton Leitenberg, 2021-05-30 Proponents of arms control and disarmament are often confronted with the argument that reductions in defense expenditure lead to cutbacks in military industries and thus to economic hardship. While a reduction in defense production would cause some economic dislocation, this would be mitigated by the ability of the economy to adapt to changing patterns of production. This book, first published in 1983, assesses the likely effects of reductions in defense industries by an examination of the roles these industries play in national economies. Each chapter discusses industry employment, output, research and development, capital value, profitability, concentration, and competition, internal organization, and regional employment concentration. Other questions considered include the economic importance of weapons exports, the defense industry as a leading edge in maintaining national technological capabilities, and the reliance of individual firms on defense contracting.

Militarization And The International Arms Race In Latin America Augusto Varas, 2021-10-28 Military conflicts and dictatorships in Latin America are the main consequences of the increasingly autonomous role of the armed forces in the region, asserts noted scholar Augusto Varas, and international factors related to the expansion of weapon industries in the North and the increasing flow of financial resources to Latin America are accelerating the arms race Varas discusses the historical function of the armed forces in local politics the new ideology of the national security doctrine and the process of conflict perception by the Latin American military He also analyzes the inevitable relations between the arms race and the political role of the region s armed institutions Using Chile as an example he places these factors in context and illustrates how political crisis can escalate into a regional arms race He then concludes with a discussion of the links between prospects for democracy in the region and demilitarization and disarmament Third World Industrialization in the 1980s

Raphie Kaplinsky,2010-11-26 First published in 1984 this work explores the issues surrounding the industrialisation of the Third World at the beginning of the 1980s The expectation that Newly Industrialising Countries would facilitate industrial growth via an outward orientated strategy had begun to be the combination of growing recession growing protectionism and the diffusion of radical microelectronics related technical change In addition the high indebtedness of developing countries made them increasingly dependent on assistance from the IMF and IBRD whose policies increased the tendency towards de industrialisation The papers in this volume explore all of these issues and their implication for LDC industrial strategy in the 1980s Transnational Corporations and Doctrine of Neoglobalism Valentin Dmitrievich Shchetin,1987 The
