Understanding Abstract Art Frank Whitford, 1987 Abstract paintings are discussed here both from the point of view of their creators and from the point of view of the spectator Then the kind of question repeatedly asked about abstraction is asked and answered By what standards can an abstract painting be judged Does abstraction set out to disregard the public's expectations and wishes If so is it unique in this Does the viewer contribute more to an appreciation of an abstract painting than to a more traditional work Does any abstract painting have a message If so how does it express it Is it necessary to know anything about the artist himself in order to fully appreciate his work Does an abstract painting require more or less skill in its execution than a traditional work Is there anything more to abstraction than novelty back cover

The Problem of Gauguin's Therapist William Hoffman Pincus, 1994 This work is a theoretical reflection on the implications of modern language theory for the classification and treatment of madness Using a structuralist perspective the text argues that psychotherapy is an impossible task because truth is bound to language in the psycho-social realm Therefore it argues the classification of mental disorders is a political rather than medical or scientific endeavour This book claims that instead of being a branch of medicine which alleviates individual suffering the mental health field is a de facto socializing force shaping individuals to society's standards

The Work of Art Michael D. Jackson, 2016-10-25 How are we to think of works of art Rather than treat art as an expression of individual genius market forces or aesthetic principles Michael Jackson focuses on how art effects transformations in our lives Art opens up transitional ritual or utopian spaces that enable us to reconcile inward imperatives and outward constraints thereby making our lives more manageable and meaningful Art allows us to strike a balance between being actors and being acted upon Drawing on his ethnographic fieldwork in Aboriginal Australia and West Africa as well as insights from psychoanalysis religious studies literature and the philosophy of art Jackson deploys an extraordinary range of references from Bruegel to Beuys Paleolithic art to performance art Michelangelo to Munch to explore the symbolic labor whereby human beings make themselves both individually and socially out of the environmental biographical and physical materials that affect them a process that connects art with gestation storytelling and dreaming and illuminates the elementary forms of religious life
