Zindi's Journey Jennifer Pretious Koh, 2013-08 Zindi's Journey Finding Gem is a children's story with a message for everyone set in the fictitious Valley of a Hundred Hills in Africa. It is about a young girl named Zindi who follows both an internal and external journey similar to one that so many of us travel. We are all born with gems of creative potential. Then gradually as parents, teachers, and society burden us with their expectations to be practical, sensible, and to conform, a thing I call Squelch, our internal critic emerges. It has the power to squash and devour our creative spirit. Zindi is born with tap swaying feet and a voice of honey and gold. However, her parents expect her to do chores and believe her singing and dancing is a waste of time. Simultaneously, the village river runs parallel to Zindi's journey. It reflects the creative life force. At her peak, it whooshes by sparkling with gems that dance and sparkle. Then a factory appears alongside the river, polluting it with its grime. When Zindi is at her lowest, when she is forbidden to chant and to sway, the river becomes sluggish and slow. Squelch lurks around with a smirk on his face, feeding off the sludge and the slime. Gem, who represents her creative potential, flickers faintly. But when Zindi can take it no more and decides to break out of her slump, things change. At the back of the book is a Teacher Parent Guide with practical discovery tools and resources to help children or oneself mine deeper to explore hidden dreams and life passions. Besides their educational value, they're great fun too.

Performance as Research Annette Arlander, Bruce Barton, Melanie Dreyer-Lude, Ben Spatz, 2017-12-06 Performance as Research (PAR) is characterised by an extraordinary elasticity and interdisciplinary drive. Performance as Research: Knowledge, Methods, Impact celebrates this energy, bringing together chapters from a wide range of disciplines and eight different countries. This volume focuses explicitly on three critical, often contentious themes that run through much discussion of PaR as a discipline: Knowledge, the areas and manners in which performance can generate knowledge; Methods, methods and methodologies for approaching performance as research; Impact, a broad understanding of the impact of this form of research. These themes are framed by four essays from the book's editors, contextualising their interrelated conversations, teasing out common threads and exploring the new questions that the contributions pose to the field of performance. As both an intervention into and extension of current debates, this is a vital collection for any reader concerned with the value and legitimacy of performance as research.
