Multiple Goals in Discourse Karen Tracy, Nikolas Coupland, 1990 The studies in this monograph share two common features a recognition of the intertwined nature of goal and discourse and a recognition that people typically have more than one goal when they talk with others It is essential that goals and discourse be conceived of as intertwined concepts if talk is conceived as essentially a mode of action then these actions will often be taken in the pursuance of objectives Correspondingly if we assume that people approach many social episodes with specific designs ambitions wishes probably also misgivings and avoidances then it seems natural to look at talk as at least a potential goal fulfillment mechanism

Developing Communication Theories Gerry Philipsen, Terrance L. Albrecht, 1997-01-01 Leading scholars present the principal findings and conclusions of a long term program of research into the nature and dynamics of human communication Well known authors present not only their own theories of human communication but also describe from personal vantage points the process by which they constructed their theories. The authors' narratives of their experiences in posing, formulating, and empirically investigating their questions provide invaluable instructional models for current students. The vitality of this book derives from the communal focus on the theory and practice of language and other means of communicative conduct. Each chapter is concerned with the pragmatics of human communication and describes an original and systematic study of the phenomena with recourse to data. Together, these chapters represent a range of important contemporary directions in communication studies.

Seeking and Resisting Compliance Steven R. Wilson, 2002-07-10. Why do individuals say what they do during everyday face-to-face influence interactions? How do people seek or resist compliance in different relational, institutional, and cultural contexts? Linking theory and research to salient real-life examples and recent academic studies, Steven Wilson introduces the reader to the theories, systems of message analysis, complexities, and nuances of interpersonal persuasion. Seeking and Resisting Compliance is the only single-authored interdisciplinary text to explore compliance, gaining, and resistance from a message production perspective. This incisive, clearly written text is ideal for students, scholars, and anyone interested in interpersonal influence and persuasion in everyday interactions. Recommended for graduate and upper-level undergraduate courses in persuasion, as well as special topics courses in interpersonal influence, social psychology, and sociolinguistics.

Features of this text: Groundbreaking, specific focus on message production, as opposed to only message effects. Multiple theoretical perspectives are presented, and the vast body of research from communication psychology, linguistics, philosophy, and related fields is reviewed. Student-friendly pedagogy, such as definitions, examples, and sections describing common assumptions about various theories, engage students and highlight important concepts. Steven Wilson currently is an Associate Professor and Director of Graduate Studies in the Department of Communication at Purdue University. He is one of five associate editors for the interdisciplinary journal Personal Relationships and past chair of the International Communication Association's Interpersonal Communication division. His research and teaching focus on interpersonal influence and message production in a variety of contexts, from parent-child interaction in abusive families to intercultural business negotiations. He has published nearly forty articles and book chapters on these topics.

Covering a wide range of interpersonal communication theories, the scope of this exceptional volume includes the nature of theory and fundamental concepts in interpersonal communication theories, accounting for individual differences in message production, explanations of human communication from dyadic, relational, and or cultural levels and a history of communication theory Chapter authors offer their own views of the core ideas and findings of specific theoretical perspectives discussing the phenomena those perspectives are best positioned to explain how the theories fit into the field and where future research efforts are best placed While by no means comprehensive Explaining Communication includes those theories that rank among those most often used in today s work that have generated a substantial body of knowledge over time and that have not been articulated in detail in other publications With detailed explorations and first hand discussions of major communication theories this volume is essential for students in communication studies interpersonal communication and advanced theory courses as well as for scholars needing a thorough reference to some of the most salient theories in communication today International Journal of Psycholinguistics ,1978
