Food Is Love Katherine J. Parkin, 2011-06-03 Modern advertising has changed dramatically since the early twentieth century but when it comes to food Katherine Parkin writes the message has remained consistent Advertisers have historically promoted food in distinctly gendered terms returning repeatedly to themes that associated shopping and cooking with women Foremost among them was that regardless of the actual work involved women should serve food to demonstrate love for their families In identifying shopping and cooking as an expression of love ads helped to both establish and reinforce the belief that kitchen work was women s work even as women s participation in the labor force dramatically increased Alternately flattering her skills as a homemaker and preying on her insecurities advertisers suggested that using their products would give a woman irresistible sexual allure a happy marriage and healthy children Ads also promised that by buying and making the right foods a woman could help her family achieve social status maintain its racial or ethnic identity and assimilate into the American mainstream Advertisers clung tenaciously to this paradigm throughout great upheavals in the patterns of American work diet and gender roles To discover why Food Is Love draws on thousands of ads that appeared in the most popular magazines of the twentieth and early twenty first centuries including the Ladies Home Journal Good Housekeeping Ebony and the Saturday Evening Post The book also cites the records of one of the nation s preeminent advertising firms as well as the motivational research advertisers utilized to reach their customers Heading Home Shani Orgad, 2019-01-08 Women in today s advanced capitalist societies are encouraged to lean in The media and government champion women s empowerment In a cultural climate where women can seemingly have it all why do so many successful professional women lawyers financial managers teachers engineers and others give up their careers after having children and become stay at home mothers How do they feel about their decision and what do their stories tell us about contemporary society Heading Home reveals the stark gap between the promise of gender equality and women s experience of continued injustice Shani Orgad draws on in depth personal and profoundly ambivalent interviews with highly educated London women who left paid employment to take care of their children while their husbands continued to work in high powered jobs Despite identifying the structural forces that maintain gender inequality these women still struggle to articulate their decisions outside the narrow cultural ideals that devalue motherhood and individualize success and failure Orgad juxtaposes these stories with media and policy depictions of women work and family detailing how even as their experiences fly in the face of fantasies of work life balance and marriage as an egalitarian partnership these women continue to interpret and judge themselves according to the ideals that are failing them Rather than calling for women to transform their feelings and behavior Heading Home argues that we must unmute and amplify women s desire disappointment and rage and demand social infrastructure that will bring about long overdue equality both at work and at home The Woman who Knows Herself Elizabeth Macfarlane Sloan Chesser, 1929 The Woman's Journal , 1917 The Tradwife Revolution Alexandra

Deem,2026-03-02 The Tradwife Revolution An Ethnography of Trad Futurism on Social Media examines online networks of tradwives women on social media who align themselves with traditional gender roles and homemaking as a revolutionary lifestyle choice in modern times Through ethnographic fieldwork the book reveals how binary gender norms and a shared belief that feminism prevents women from embracing their natural femininity unite diverse communities from secular stay at home mothers to Christian wives advocating submission from homeschoolers to political conservatives The book introduces the concept of trad futurism to analyze how these women navigate the tensions between neoliberalism and neofascist ideologies using social media to redefine domesticity and femininity while monetizing their traditional lifestyle choices and creating alternative visions of the future The Tradwife Revolution An Ethnography of Trad Futurism on Social Media is ideal for students and researchers across social sciences interested in right wing imaginaries digital cultures and contemporary gender politics

The Rise of Neoliberal Feminism Catherine Rottenberg,2018-08-01 The Rise of Neoliberal Feminism demonstrates how the notion of a happy work family balance has not only been incorporated into the popular imagination as a feminist ideal but also lies at the heart of a new variant of feminism one that has abandoned any commitment to equal rights or emancipation This book underscores the ways in which neoliberal feminism forsakes the vast majority of women while facilitating new and intensified forms of racialized and class stratified gender exploitation Given our frightening neoliberal reality the monumental challenge then is how we can successfully reorient and reclaim feminism as a social justice movement
