The Campaign:

Senators on the Campaign Trail Richard F. Fenno, 1998-02-01 This is a book about the politics of representative democracy written from the perspective of the politicians who make it work Typically political scientists study campaigns from the perspective of the voter and for the purpose of explaining election outcomes But campaigns also need to be studied from the perspective of the candidate for the purpose of understanding representation Richard F Fenno Jr traveled with ten U S senators as they campaigned in their home states using what he calls the drop in drop out tag along hang around method of research to present a developmental picture of their activities His focus here is on three such activities pursuing a career campaigning for office and building constituency connections Taken together the three constitute the political underpinnings of representative democracy Fenno describes the achievement the testing and the maintenance of representational relationships He examines challengers and incumbents winners and losers and motivations strategies and behaviors and he reports on differences similarities and patterns among them In studying the candidates varied careers campaigns and connections in stages and sequences and in depth and in allowing us to hear them reflect on these experiences Fenno has been able to offer rare insights into campaigns and elections insights very different from conventional ones that concentrate on the behavior of voters In its focus on the process of representative democracy Senators on the Campaign Trail offers a rich rounded developmental view of some high level individuals who work at the business of representation For scholars the book suggests some qualitative confirmation and added stimulation in forging generalizations about politicians For citizens the book argues for replacing the conventional blanket condemnation of our politicians so prevalent today with more discriminating judgments about what they do and why and to what purpose they do it
