wide Western audience builds its opinion on issues that carry consequences for the public and governments support and policy towards development aid. The Western media reinforce a picture of a continent that drowns in chaos, dominated by conflicts, diseases, corruption, and failed democratisation. Whose interests lie behind that? How does foreign news on sub-Saharan Africa emerge, which actors are relevant in its making, and on the basis of what interests do these actors shape the coverage that is then presented as neutral information to a broad international audience? Closely examining the relationship between foreign correspondents of international news media and humanitarian organisations, Lena von Naso shows how the aid and media sectors cooperate in Africa in a unique way. Based on more than 70 interviews with foreign correspondents and aid workers operating across Africa, the book argues that the changing nature of foreign news and of aid is forcing them to form a deep co-dependency that is having a serious and largely unnoticed effect on Western news coverage. This comprehensive examination of a new paradigm will interest students and scholars of media and journalism, African studies, development and humanitarian studies, and the aid and media communities operating across Africa.

The Shaping of News Julie Firmstone, 2023-09-23. This book provides readers with the understanding required to analyse the range of key factors that shape the production of news and to assess their implications for the role of news and journalism in democracy. It brings existing research together under the umbrella of a central organising framework to explore how news and its production is shaped by a multiplicity of factors, including the norms, values, role perceptions, and ethics associated with journalism; as a profession; the role of news sources; the changing character and significance of news audiences; the aims and objectives of news organisations; and the political, economic, and social contexts within which news is produced. Exploring these factors in depth, using examples and considering the changing conditions of news production, the chapters chart significant changes, challenges, and responses to provide the essential background for understanding the consequences of current transformations for the democratic qualities of news.
