Young,Sheila K. Marshall,Ladislav Valach,José F. Domene,Matthew D. Graham,Anat Zaidman-Zait,2010-09-08 The transition to adulthood involves for most individuals moving from school to work establishment of long term relationships possibly parenting and a number of other psychosocial transformations Now more than ever there is a concern within popular and research literature about children growing up too soon or too late or failing to realize changes associated with being adult With this in mind the book intends to answer a series of timely questions in regard to transition to adulthood and propose a wholly new approach to counseling that enables youth to engage fully in their lives and achieve their best Active Transition to Adulthood A New Approach for Counseling will discuss the authors work on the transition to adulthood including early and late adolescence from an entirely innovative perspective action theory Over a period of 10 15 years the authors have collected substantial data on adolescents and youth in transition and will present an approach to counseling based on these data and cases The action theory perspective in which the authors have grounded their work addresses the intentional goal directed behavior of persons and groups that is expressed through particular actions longer term projects and life encompassing careers In this book both transition to adulthood and counseling will be covered in the language of goal directed action In this way both transition and counseling reflect and capture the action projects and careers in which families youth and clients are engaged and use to construct on going identity and other narratives Ideas in Action Peter H. Russell,1999 Peter Russell a political scientist and an energetic participant in constitutional debate is the focus of this collection of essays Designed to reflect the manifold career of Russell the work

based on the proceedings of a conference held in 1996 includes contributions on constitutional politics security and intelligence Aboriginal people the courts and law and society As is evident from the essays themselves there are common theoretical strands that weave their way through Russell s scholarship including democratic accountability political deliberation and cultural diversity The collection s editor Joseph Fletcher has brought together a group of contributors whose backgrounds reflect Russell s own diverse academic and personal interests with scholars and practitioners among them As a result the tone of the work is a successful blend of analysis and reflection Few Canadian scholars exhibit the level of productivity that Peter Russell has over the years and for that he certainly deserves the honour he receives in this fine collection

Transition Eugène Jolas,1927 Transition ,1927 A Practical Approach to Implementing Real-time Semantics Gerald Luetzgen,Institute for Computer Applications in Science and Engineering,1999 Abstract This paper investigates implementations of process algebras which are suitable for modeling concurrent real time systems It suggests an approach for efficiently implementing real time semantics using dynamic priorities For this purpose a process algebra with dynamic priority is defined whose semantics corresponds one to one to traditional real time semantics The advantage of the dynamic priority approach is that it drastically reduces the state space sizes of the systems in question while preserving all properties of their functional and real time behavior The utility of the technique is demonstrated by a case study which deals with the formal modeling and verification of the SCSI 2 bus protocol The case study is carried out in the Concurrency Workbench of North Carolina an automated verification tool in which the process algebra with dynamic priority is implemented It turns out that the state space of the bus protocol model is about an order of magnitude smaller than the one resulting from real time semantics The accuracy of the model is proved by applying model checking for verifying several mandatory properties of the bus protocol

The Politics of Transition Richard Spitz,Matthew Chaskalson,2000-07-24 Co publication with Witwatersrand University Press During the early 1990s South Africans kept a close eye on the media coverage of South Africa s negotiated transition to democracy Likened to a soap opera by some the negotiations featured violent interlopers dramatic walkouts alliances and somehow a fortunate conclusion in the form of the Interim Constitution and Bill of Rights The importance of the negotiating process and the Interim Constitution itself should not be underestimated however in relation to their longer term influence over the form of democracy currently enjoyed in South Africa In this brave publication Spitz and Chaskalson examine the politics behind the Kempton Park negotiations and the Interim Constitution and the influence that these have had on the subsequent consolidation of a South African democracy This book will be of importance to anyone interested in South African politics constitutional law democracy and human rights

Abstract Artificial Intelligence AI the design of technology with attributes that we traditionally associate with living beings generally follows the broader scientific tradition of focusing on technical problems and their solutions within a relatively constrained framework The cultural studies of science on the other hand insists that scientific work should be understood as it springs from and influences other cultural phenomena including the background of metaphors and assumptions that influence the way scientists do their work In this thesis I explore the possibilities for AI and the cultural studies of science to engage in a mutually beneficial alliance by studying AI as a culturally situated activity and by using results of that study to generate novel technology Specifically I focus on the design of autonomous agents programs which are intended to represent a complete person animal or character In the alternative AI tradition these agents are created from a set of independent building blocks termed behaviors A major open question is how these behaviors can be synthesized to create an agent with overall coherent behavior I trace the problems in behavior integration to a strategy called atomization that AI shares with industrialization and psychiatric institutionalization Atomization is the process of breaking agents into modular chunks with limited interaction and represents a catch 22 for AI while this strategy is essential for building understandable code it is fatal for creating agents that have the overall coherence we have come to associate with living beings I tackle this problem of integration by redefining the notion of agent Instead of seeing agents as autonomous creatures with little reference to their sociocultural context I suggest that agents can be thought of in the style of cultural studies as a form of communication between the agent s designer and the audience which will try to comprehend the agent s activity With this metaphor as a basis it becomes clear that we need to integrate not the agent s internally defined code but the way in which the agent presents itself to the user Narrative psychology suggests that agents will be maximally comprehensible as intentional beings if they are structured to provide cues for narrative I therefore build an agent architecture the Expressivator which provides support for narratively comprehensible agents most notably by using behavioral transitions to link atomic behaviors into narrative sequences
