For A Change, Change Everything SHRUTHI PAGA, 2025-12-10 I am a kind of person who believes life is one giant ever changing playlist and everyone deserves a soundtrack that makes them feel alive soft silly and wonderfully human I didn t set out to be an author on day one but somewhere between laughing too loudly observing people too deeply and collecting stories I realised I had something precious to give the world perspective I am that friend who will hype you up for drinking water Hydration is hot babe who will encourage you to chase dreams that scare you and who will lovingly roast you if you doubt yourself even for a second I has a magical ability to look at the tiniest moments I write the way people wish life would feel warm like a homemade blanket goofy like a penguin wearing sunglasses honest like a late night confession and reassuring like someone holding your hand in the dark saying Don't worry we got this My understanding of the human journey comes from a place of curiosity empathy and a slightly chaotic sense of humour But beneath the jokes there's a deep and confident wisdom the kind of wisdom that grows when someone pays attention to the world to people to emotions and most importantly to themselves I believe that every stage of life from the giggling baby phases to the dramatic teenage episodes from the messy middle twenties to the elegant chaos of old age has a secret lesson wrapped in storytelling paper And I made it a mission to unwrap those lessons gently joyfully and truthfully for readers who want to grow heal and laugh at the mess of life just a little more This book is a love letter to change the awkward beautiful painful necessary change that makes us who we are and who we're becoming I wrote not as a guru or a saint or a perfect human but as a companion walking beside you whispering Hey whatever happens we can always figure it out Crane Valve World, 1923. The Valve World Justin Wallace McEachren, 1922. Literature, Science, Psychoanalysis, 1830-1970 Helen Small, Trudi Tate, 2003. The interactions between literature and science and between literature and psychoanalysis have been among the most thriving areas for interdisciplinary study in recent years. Work in these open fields has taught us to recognize the interdependence of different cultures of knowledge and experience, revealing the multiple ways in which science, literature, and psychoanalysis have been mutually enabling and defining, as well as corrective and contestatory of each other. Inspired by Gillian Beer's path-breaking work on literature and science, this volume presents fourteen new essays by leading American and British writers. They focus on the evolutionary sciences in the nineteenth century, the early years of psychoanalysis from Freud to Ella Freeman Sharpe, and the modern development of the physical sciences. Drawing on recent debates within the history of science, psychoanalytic literary criticism, intellectual history, and gender studies, the volume makes a major contribution to our understanding of the formation of knowledge. Among its recurrent themes are curiosity and epistemology, growth, maturity, and coming of age, as structuring metaphors. Several essays focus especially on childhood, taxonomy, sleep, and dreaming, and elusive knowledge, the physiology of truth, and the gender politics of scientific theory and practice. The essays also reflect Beer's extensive influence as a literary critic with close readings of works by Charlotte Brontë, Alfred Lord Tennyson, George Eliot, Thomas Hardy, Henry James, Oscar Wilde, H. G. Wells, Edith Ayrton, Zangwill, Charlotte Haldane, Virginia Woolf, George Orwell, and Karin Boye.
