Aerospace Agencies and Organizations George V. D'Angelo,1993-08-23 The book is an up to date and comprehensive description of the institutions involved in the aerospace field It discusses the activities of the main space powers the United Nations and other international organizations Without listing figures and budgets the author conveys a clear idea of the relative importance of those institutions The novelty of this work is that in bringing together national and international entities it explains how those organizations interrelate and coordinate their programs A complete picture emerges which is more than the sum of its parts The field of aerospace which depends heavily on government funding and direction has been particularly effected by the shifting alliances and recent financial troubles of the space powers In a book which is both comprehensive and simple to understand d Angelo has collected the many pieces of a complex institutional mosaic to draw a clear picture of the entire framework In addition to being up to date the book is also a novelty in the sense that it describes the work of both national and international entities and explains how those organizations interrelate and coordinate their programs Without making a list of figures and budgets d Angelo gives a clear idea of the relative weight of the various government activities From the discussion of those activities
