Human beings live and thrive by modifying nature, but when do the risks of changing nature outweigh the likely benefits? If it's true that life will find a way, should we view any modified or newly reconstituted life as a hazard? The new scientific information we could gain by bringing back T Rex or other dinosaurs is immense, including greater understanding of biology leading to immeasurable medical benefits, but should we choose to let sleeping dinosaurs lie? And if we do bring them back by reconstituting them from ancient DNA, are they really what they were, or is something missing? If life will find a way, then why isn't the Dodo still around? How close are we, as a matter of fact, to achieving Jurassic Park? Are we really likely to see reconstituted dinosaurs or other ancient species in the near future? How do the different forces—human curiosity, profitability, and philanthropy—interact to determine what actually happens in such cases?
