ABSTRACT

Purpose The Understanding America Study (UAS) is a probability-based Internet panel housed at the Center for Economic and Social Research at the University of Southern California (USC). The UAS serves as a social and health sciences infrastructure for collecting data on the daily lives of US families and individuals. The collected information includes survey data, DNA from saliva samples, information from wearables, contextual and administrative linkages, ecological momentary assessments, self-recorded narratives and electronic records of financial transactions. The information collected focuses on a defining challenge of our time—identifying factors explaining racial, ethnic, geographic and socioeconomic disparities over the life course, including racial discrimination, inequalities in access to education and healthcare, differences in physical, economic and social environments, and, more generally, the various opportunities and obstacles one encounters over the life course. The UAS infrastructure aims to optimise engagement with the wider research community both in data dissemination and in soliciting input on content and methods. To encourage input from the research community, we have reserved 100 000 min of survey time per year for outside researchers, who can propose to add survey questions four times a year.

Participants The UAS currently comprises about 15 000 US residents (including a 3500-person California oversample) recruited by Address-Based Sampling and provided with Internet-enabled tablets if needed. Surveys are conducted in English and Spanish.

Findings to date Since the founding of the UAS in 2014, we have conducted more than 600 surveys, including a sequence of surveys collecting biennial information on health and retirement (the complete Health and Retirement Study instrument), 11 cognitive assessments, personality, knowledge and use of information on Social Security programme rules, work disability and subjective well-being. Several hundreds of papers have been published based on the collected data in the UAS. Studies include documentations of the mental health effects of the COVID-19 pandemic and how this varied across socioeconomic groups; comparisons of physical activity measured with accelerometers and by self-reports showing the dramatic biases in the latter; extensive studies have shown the power of using paradata in gauging cognitive change over time; several messaging experiments have shown the effectiveness of information provision on the quality of decision-making affecting well-being at older ages.

Future plans The UAS national sample is planned to grow to 20 000 respondents by 2025, with subsamples

STRENGTHS AND LIMITATIONS OF THIS STUDY

- Probability-based Internet panels such as the Understanding America Study (UAS) avoid selection problems facing opt-in or convenience Internet panels, while several studies confirm their ability to provide population representative information.
- Attrition in the UAS is on a par with other population representative panels.
- By breaking up surveys in short (30-min or less) modules that are administered infrequently, the amount of longitudinal information collected per respondent is substantially larger than in traditional interviewer-administered surveys.
- The flexibility of the Internet as a survey mode allows for quick turn-around data collection and dissemination, and hence for fast response to new developments, such as the COVID-19 pandemic.
- As with any self-interviewing survey mode, Internet interviewing limits our ability to collect biomarker data, as these must be collected by respondents themselves without the help of an in-person interviewer.

of about 2500 African American, 2000 Asian and 3000 Hispanic participants and an oversample of rural areas. An increasing amount of non-interview data (contextual information, data from a suite of wearables and administrative linkages) is continually being added to the data files.

INTRODUCTION

The roots of the UAS lie in an early recognition by the Principal Investigator of the Health and Retirement Study (HRS), Robert J Willis, in 2001 that the Internet was going to be an important interview mode for national surveys. This resulted in two consecutive research grants awarded by the National Institute on Ageing (NIA) entitled ‘Internet Interviewing and the HRS’, which were jointly conducted by the University of Michigan and the RAND Corporation. As a direct result, the American Life Panel (ALP) was founded at RAND. The ALP was a probability-based Internet panel. It was used to conduct several mode experiments in conjunction with the HRS, but gradually became a platform for numerous research projects beyond
