

Graham Greene once listed seventeen of Walter de la Mare's short stories and wrote of them: 'Here is one man's choice of what he could not, under any circumstances, spare. In all these stories, it seems to this admirer that we have a prose unequalled in its richness since the death of James, or dare one say at this date, Robert Louis Stevenson.' Eight of the stories he chose, 'The Almond Tree', 'Scaton's Aunt', 'Miss Duveen', 'Crewe', 'An Ideal Craftsman', 'The Trumpet', 'Missing' and 'All Hallows', had also been chosen by de la Mare himself when he compiled Best Stories of Walter de la Mare. Under pressure of public demand, we are pleased to be bringing out his Best Stories for the first time as a Faber Paperback. It includes, in addition, 'Miss Miller', 'The Orgy', 'The Nap', 'Physic', 'The Picnic', 'The House', 'What Dreams May Come', and his strange vision of post-cataclysmic desolation, 'The Vans'. Its publication will be a welcome follow-up to the recent reissue of de la Mare's full-length novel, Memoirs of a Midget, now regarded as a twentieth-century classic.
