I am a poor way-far-ing stran-ger a-wand-ring I know dark clouds will gath-er 'round me, I know my through this world of woe And there's no sick-ness tell no dan-ger in that bright way is rough and steep. But gol-den fields lie just be-fore me where woe-ry world to which I go I'm go-ing there to see my fa-ther I'm go-ing eyes no more will weep I'm go-ing there to see my mo-ther She said she'd there meet no more to roam I'm on-ly go-ing o-ver Jer-dan, I'm on-ly

Thomas Johnson-Medland,2023-04-28 We are nomads We are all nomads We are all nomad singing our lives into the night Our lives arise melodies and syncopated rhythms giving way to meanings and tellings Shadows echoes and flickerings Hints mumblings and innuendo Some of the stanzas are whispers and others are loud slow dirges Some we sing alone Others are call and response We rarely sing together all of us at once and in the same place but we do From time to time Quite often when we are not trying to Quite often we sing together but from different places in time and space A call There is some sense of our nomad self our nomad soul which responds to an inner and an outer call It is as if the inner thrum that ambient hum of our individual life is lured to and infatuated with the outer thrum that other ambient hum of life the one for all that is The calls meet up and they bond themselves covalently That which is inside is magically seduced by that which is outside Come and join the Caravan you are already a part of The Life and Poetry of Frank Stanford James
