Pleasant Ways in Science Richard Anthony Proctor, 1886 Pleasant Ways in Science Richard Anthony Proctor, 2020-09-28 The most promising result of solar research since Kirchhoff in 1859 interpreted the dark lines of the sun's spectrum has recently been announced from America Interesting in itself the discovery just made is doubly interesting in what it seems to promise in the future Just as Kirchhoff's great discovery that a certain double dark line in the solar spectrum is due to the vapour of sodium in the sun's atmosphere was but the first of a long series of results which the spectroscopic analysis of the sun was to reveal so the discovery just announced that a certain important gas the oxygen present in our air and the chief chemical constituent of water shows its presence in the sun by bright lines instead of dark will in all probability turn out to be but the firstfruits of a new method of examining the solar spectrum As its author Dr Henry Draper of New York remarks further investigation in the direction he has pursued will lead to the discovery of other elements in the sun but it was not proper to conceal for the sake of personal advantage the principle on which such researches are to be conducted It may well happen though I anticipate otherwise that by thus at once describing his method of observation Dr Draper may enable others to add to the list of known solar elements some which yet remain to be detected but if Dr Draper should thus have added but one element to that list he will ever be regarded as the physicist to whose acumen the method was due by which all were detected and to whom therefore the chief credit of their discovery must certainly be attributed I propose briefly to consider the circumstances which preceded the great discovery which it is now my pleasing duty to describe in order that the reader may the more readily follow the remarks by which I shall endeavour to indicate some of the results which seem to follow from the discovery as well as the line along which in my opinion the new method may most hopefully be followed

Constructing Representations to Learn in Science Russell Tytler, Vaughan Prain, Peter Hubber, Bruce Waldrip, 2013-04-20 Constructing Representations to Learn in Science Current research into student learning in science has shifted attention from the traditional cognitivist perspectives of conceptual change to socio cultural and semiotic perspectives that characterize learning in terms of induction into disciplinary literacy practices This book builds on recent interest in the role of representations in learning to argue for a pedagogical practice based on students actively generating and exploring representations The book describes a sustained inquiry in which the authors worked with primary and secondary teachers of science on key topics identified as problematic in the research literature Data from classroom video teacher interviews and student artifacts were used to develop and validate a set of pedagogical principles and explore student learning and teacher change issues The authors argue the theoretical and practical case for a representational focus The pedagogical approach is illustrated and explored in terms of the role of representation to support quality student learning in science Separate chapters address the implications of this perspective and practice for structuring sequences around different concepts reasoning and inquiry in science models and model based reasoning the nature of concepts and learning teacher change and assessment The authors argue that this representational focus leads to significantly enhanced student learning and has the effect of offering new and productive perspectives and approaches for a number of contemporary strands of thinking in science education including conceptual change inquiry scientific literacy and a focus on the epistemic nature of science

Teaching Science Karl Maton,J. R. Martin,Y. J. Doran,2021-04-25 Science has never been more important yet science education faces serious challenges At present science education research only sees half the picture focusing on how students learn and their changing conceptions Both teaching practice and what is taught science knowledge itself are missing This book offers new interdisciplinary ways of thinking about science teaching that foreground the forms taken by science knowledge and the language imagery and gesture through which they are expressed This book brings together leading international scholars from Systemic Functional Linguistics a long established approach to language and Legitimation Code Theory a rapidly growing sociological approach to knowledge practices It explores how to bring knowledge language and pedagogy back into the picture of science education but also offers radical innovations that will shape future research Part I sets out new ways of understanding the role of knowledge in integrating mathematics into science teaching scientific explanations and using multimedia resources such as animations Part II provides new concepts for showing the role of language in complex scientific explanations in how scientific taxonomies are built and in combining with mathematics and images to create science knowledge Part III draws on the approaches to explore how more students can access scientific knowledge how to teach professional reasoning the role of body language in science teaching and making mathematics understandable to all learners Teaching Science offers major leaps forward in understanding knowledge language and pedagogy that will shape the research agenda far beyond science education
