Ashcroft, 2009-01-21 In Shakespeare's Tempest Caliban says to Miranda and Prospero you taught me language and my profit on't Is I know how to curse With this statement he gives voice to an issue that lies at the centre of post colonial studies Can Caliban own Prospero's language Can he use it to do more than curse Caliban's Voice examines the ways in which post colonial literatures have transformed English to redefine what we understand to be English Literature It investigates the importance of language learning in the imperial mission the function of language in ideas of race and place the link between language and identity the move from orature to literature and the significance of translation By demonstrating the dialogue that occurs between writers and readers in literature Bill Ashcroft argues that cultural identity is not locked up in language but that language even a dominant colonial language can be transformed to convey the realities of many different cultures Using the figure of Caliban Ashcroft weaves a consistent and resonant thread through his discussion of the post colonial experience of life in the English language and the power of its transformation into new and creative forms

Indigenous Literature of Oceania Nicholas J. Goetzfridt,1995-02-28 Oceania has a rich and growing literary tradition The imaginative literature that emerged in the 1960s often reflected the forms and structures of European literature though the ideas expressed were typically anticolonial After three decades the literature of Oceania has become much more complex in terms of style as well as content and authors write in a multiplicity of styles and voices While the written literature of Oceania is continuously gaining more critical attention questions about the imposition of European literary standards and values as a further extension of colonialism in the Pacific have become a central issue This book is a detailed survey of the expanding amount of critical and interpretive material written about the imaginative literature of authors from Oceania It focuses on commentary and scholarship concerned with the poetry fiction and drama written in English by indigenous peoples of the Pacific Islands New Zealand and Australia The criticisms have appeared in academic books and journals since the mid 1960s They have developed to the point at which critical issues related to decolonization and the expression of ideas without having to first satisfy foreign expectations often determine the direction of such discussions Entries are grouped in topical chapters and each entry includes an extensive annotation An introductory essay summarizes the evolution of Pacific literature
