Vulnerability examines vulnerability from a range of connected perspectives. It responds to the vulnerability of species, their extinction but also their transformation. This tension between extreme danger and creativity is played out in literary studies through the pressures the discipline brings to bear on its own categories, particularly those of genre. Extinction and preservation on the one hand, transformation, adaptation and re-mediation on the other. These two poles inform our comparative and interdisciplinary project. The volume is situated within the particular intercultural and intermedial context of contemporary cultural representation. Vulnerability is explored as a site of potential destruction, human as well as animal, but also as a site of potential openness. This is the first book to bring vulnerability studies into dialogue with media and genre studies. It is organised in four sections: Human, Animal, Violence, Resistance, Image, Narrative and Medium, Genre. Each chapter considers the intersection of vulnerability and genre from a comparative perspective, bringing together a team of international contributors and editors. The book is in dialogue with the reflections of Judith Butler and others on vulnerability and it questions categories of genre through an interdisciplinary engagement with different representational forms including digital culture, graphic novels, video games, photography and TV series, in addition to novels and short stories. It offers new readings of high profile contemporary authors of fiction including Margaret Atwood and Cormac McCarthy, as well as bringing lesser known figures to the fore.

Perspective 87 : Stan Douglas Barbara Fischer, 1987 Stan Douglas: Ghostlight Lauren Cornell, Stan Douglas, Christian Ayne Crouch, Christina Sharpe, Laura U. Marks, Kevin Moore, 2025-07-18

Stan Douglas Ghostlight will accompany the artist's first survey in the United States in more than twenty years, charting his global influence and innovation across forty works from the 1990s to the present. Since the 1980s Douglas has created films, photographs and multidisciplinary projects that investigate the parameters of their respective mediums. His ongoing inquiry into technology's role in image making and how those mediations infiltrate and shape collective memory has resulted in works that are at once specific in their historical and cultural references and broadly accessible. Many works investigate pivotal historical events. Through ambitious restagings of battle scenes, covert plots, riots, civic collapse and social tension and unease, Douglas focuses on moments of rupture where, as he notes, history could go one way or the other. The book presents for the first time in print an immersive, multichannel video installation that revisits D.W. Griffith's 1915 film The Birth of a Nation, as well as a selection of works that explore topics ranging from settler colonialism in the Americas to the legacies of transatlantic slavery and modern movements for liberation in Africa and Europe. Douglas's deeply researched and longtime commitment to examining these histories provides an expansive view of the present that sheds light on moments of breakdown and chaos attending societies in upheaval. The book will feature new essays by CCS Bard curator Lauren Cornell, Kevin Moore, curator of the 2025 Kemper Museum of Contemporary Art's exhibition of Douglas's work, as well as scholars including Christian Ayne Crouch, Associate Professor of History and American and Indigenous Studies at Bard College, Laura U. Marks, Professor in the School for the Contemporary Arts at Simon Fraser University, and Christina Sharpe, Professor and
