World Development Report 1987:

Barriers to Adjustment and Growth in the World Economy, 1987 World Development Report 1988, 1988 This is the eleventh report in the annual series assessing major development issues Part I reviews recent trends in the world economy and their implications for the future prospects of developing countries Part II examines the role of public finance in development This report includes the World Development Indicators which provide selected social and economic indicators for more than 100 countries Despite continued economic growth through 1987 and into 1988 two problems have characterized recent trends unsustainable economic imbalances within and among industrial countries and highly uneven economic growth among developing countries Part I of the report concludes that three interdependent policy challenges need to be addressed First industrial countries need to reduce their external payments imbalances Second developing countries need to continue restructuring their domestic economic policies in order to gain creditworthiness and growth Third net resource transfers external debt from the developing countries must be trimmed so that investment and growth can resume Part II of the report explores how public finance policies are best designed and implemented How deficits are reduced is crucial controlling costs in mobilizing revenues and setting careful priorities in public spending are equally important Efficiency in providing public services and expanding the scope for raising revenue can be achieved through decentralizing decisionmaking and reforming state owned enterprises with the latter permitting greater private participation

World Development Report 1987 World Bank, 1987 This report consisting of two parts is the tenth in the annual series assessing development issues Part I reviews recent trends in the world economy and their implications for the future prospects of developing countries It stresses that better economic performance is possible in both industrial and developing countries provided the commitment to economic policy reforms is maintained and reinforced In regard to the external debt issues the report argues for strengthened cooperation among industrial countries in the sphere of macroeconomic policy to promote smooth adjustment to the imbalances caused by external payments in developing countries Part II reviews and evaluates the varied experience with government policies in support of industrialization Emphasis is placed on policies which affect both the efficiency and sustainability of industrial transformation especially in the sphere of foreign trade The report finds that developing countries which followed policies that promoted the integration of their industrial sector into the international economy through trade have fared better than those which insulated themselves from international competition

World Development Report 1987, 1987 Part I reviews recent trends in the world economy and their implications for the future prospects of developing countries It stresses that better economic performance is possible in both industrial and developing countries provided the commitment to economic policy reforms is maintained and reinforced In regard to the external debt issues the report argues for strengthened cooperation among industrial countries in the sphere of macroeconomic policy to promote smooth adjustment to the imbalances caused by external payments in developing countries

Part II reviews and evaluates the varied experience with government policies in support of industrialization. Emphasis is placed on policies which affect both the efficiency and sustainability of industrial transformation especially in the sphere of foreign trade. The report finds that developing countries which followed policies that promoted the integration of their industrial sector into the international economy through trade have fared better than those which insulated themselves from international competition.

The Politics of Global Competitiveness Paul Cammack, 2022. Marx predicted in Capital 1867 that as capitalism became global patterns of work would be transformed and workers would need to develop versatility, flexibility and mobility. This general law of social production as he called it is now in evidence all around us in global value chains, zero hours contracts and contract work organised through digital platforms. It results from competition between capitalists, scientific and technological revolutions in production and incessant advances in the division of labour as production processes are broken down into ever smaller steps. This book documents the leading roles of the Paris based Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development and the Washington based World Bank as advocates of these developments. They do not as generally supposed simply represent the interests of the advanced economies or the West and their transnational corporations. They promote a single global model of capitalist development without limits and on a genuinely global scale. It calls upon all states to adjust continually to the structural and social demands of competitiveness which they see as essential to the global hegemony of capital over labour. The OECD and the World Bank propose policies that give girls and women equal access to education and paid work reform welfare to make work pay, introduce flexible labour contracts that make hiring and firing easier, focus education on skills that boost employability and draw workers in the developing world from the informal sector into the formal sector where they can be more productive. This is the politics of global competitiveness.

Participatory Development Ponna Wignaraja, 1991. Tackling the problems of Third World development from a different perspective, this study offers a new approach in which people at the grass roots level in South Asia become both the subjects and the objects of a participatory process of development designed to improve living conditions.

Socio-Economic Development Adam Szirmai, 2015-06-18. Why are poor countries poor and rich countries rich? How are wealth and poverty related to changes in health, life expectancy, education, population growth and politics? This non-technical introduction to development studies explores the dynamics of socio-economic development and stagnation in developing countries. Thoroughly updated and revised, this second edition includes new material on the effects of the 2008 financial crisis, the emergence of the BRICS economies, the role of institutions in development and the accelerated growth of economies in Africa and Asia. Taking a comparative approach, Szirmai places contemporary debates within their broader contexts and combines insights and theories from economics, economic history, political science, anthropology and sociology. Each chapter includes comparative statistics and time series for thirty-one developing countries. Assuming no prior knowledge of economics, this book is well suited for students in interdisciplinary development studies and development.

Proceedings of the Conference on Tropical Forestry Response Options to Global Climate Change, 1990 Learning from the Japanese E. Wayne Nafziger, 1995 This book looks at Japan's early economic modernization to see if today's low income countries can learn any lessons The author focuses on education technology policy capital formation the transfer of savings from agriculture to industry state aid to the private sector improvement engineering in the informal sector low wages industrial dualism export expansion and resistance to Western imperialism a strategy which included acquiring its own empire under Japan's guided capitalism World Development Report, 1999 Perspectives on Global Development 2019 Rethinking Development Strategies OECD, 2018-11-29 In 2008 the weight of developing and emerging economies in the global economy tipped over the 50% mark for the first time Since then Perspectives on Global Development has been tracking the shift in global wealth and its impact on developing countries How much longer can the dividends of Alternative Economic Indicators (Routledge Revivals) Victor Anderson, 2014-02-04 The main objective of politicians is to maximise economic growth which heavily drives political policy and decision making Critics of the maximisation of growth as the central aim of economic policy have argued that growth in itself is not necessarily a good thing particularly for the environment however what would replace the system and how it would be measured are questions that have been rarely answered satisfactorily First published in 1991 this book was the first to lay out an entirely new set of practical proposals for developing new economic measurement tools with the aim of being sustainable green and human centred Victor Anderson proposes that a whole set of indicators rather than a single one should play all the roles that GNP Gross National Product is responsible for With a detailed overview of the central debates between the advocates and opponents of continued economic growth and an analysis of the various proposals for modification this title will be of particular value to students interested in the diversity of measurement tools and the notion that economies should also be evaluated by their social and environmental consequences Assessing World Bank Support for Trade, 1987-2004 Yvonne M. Tsikata, 2006 This evaluation of the Bank's assistance on trade related issues focuses on the period between fiscal years 1987 and 2004 The majority of developing countries have significantly improved their environment for trade and economic growth following over two decades of assistance from the Bank in trade reform Arguably the developing world is more open today than at any time in recent memory Developing countries have more than doubled their exports since the mid 1980s helping many of them to grow steadily Exports and imports have risen as a share of the gross domestic product GDP across a wide range of countries fueled in part by China's remarkable trade performance and the growth in services trade Trade policies have also been significantly liberalized Average import tariffs have fallen steadily over the period although the fall in other forms of protection has been more gradual Between fiscal years 1987 and 2004 about 81 percent of total Bank commitments went to 117 countries to help them better integrate into the global economy

This financing has been accompanied by a large volume of analysis in operational economic and sector work ESW research publications on trade and working papers on trade related topics During the first phase starting in the 1980s the Bank focused largely on the traditional trade agenda related to opening up economies During the second phase from the mid to late 1990s the Bank s emphasis on trade declined although the impact of earlier trade reforms was still playing out In the third phase initiated with the collapse of the World Trade Organization WTO Seattle trade ministerial meeting in 1999 growing pressure to deliver on the Millennium Development Goals MDG and interest from development partners notably bilateral donors led the Bank to reappraise its trade activities This phase has focused on the global trading system and behind the border barriers to trade The Bank s trade activities during the period were led by a grade policy reform package supported by four components import related export related exchange rate and foreign exchange management and industrial and other supporting policies This assessment reviews project related outcomes and outputs to focus on the progress toward a more development friendly trading Recommendations include addressing poverty distributional outcomes and external shocks in a balanced approach revisiting the balance between global and country agendas and strengthening operational links on trade issues and strengthening knowledge management efforts Human Development Report ,1999
